LABOUR ATTACKS WHITE PAPER

ALLEGEDLY UPSET BERLIN PARLEY

HITLER'S COLD SIMPLY AN EXCUSE?

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1804. Received, March 7, 10.10 a.m.)

London, Mar. 6.
The inclination of the Labour Party to blame the Government's White Paper on Imperial Defence plans as the real cause of the postponement of Sir John Simon's visit to Berlin, became apparent in the House of Commons this afternoon, if it was not already.

Incredulous Labour members' laughter greeted the Foreign Minister's reference to Reichsfuehrer Hitler's cold, which, it was alleged, had been responsible for the delay of Sir John's visit to Berlin to discuss the entry of Germany into a possible Western European peace preservation pact.

However, Sir John added that he was communicating with the German Government in order to arrange a later meeting with Herr Hitler.

Mr. George Lansbury, the Labour leader, who had criticised the White Paper on its first appearance because it referred to "the National Government" rather than His Majesty's Government, thereupon asked Sir John whether he would advise his Cabinet colleagues to withdraw the White Paper until after the Anglo-German conversations were completed.

Sir John replied: "Certainly not."
Mr. Lansbury then inquired whether the Foreign Minister thought it was conducive to friendly conversations to issue an unfriendly document like the White Paper.

Sir John, replying, intimated that the matter might be discussed during the defence debate on Monday.

Mr. F. S. Cocks, the Labour journalist member, suggested that Sir John might visit Moscow "where they had not lost their voices." This threw the House into prolonged laughter and ended the discussion.—Reuter Special.

SIMON EXPLAINS

London, March 6.
In response to a request from the Leader of the Opposition, Mr. George Lansbury, for a statement on the postponement of his Berlin visit, Sir John Simon said in the House of Commons to-day that the German Foreign Secretary had informed the British Ambassador in Berlin yesterday that the German Chancellor, having caught cold during his visit to the Saar, was suffering from great hoarseness and that on his doctor's orders the conversations arranged to take place this week with the British Ministers in Berlin would therefore, to the German Government's great regret, have to be postponed to a later date.

Asked if there was any idea when the meeting would take place, Sir John stated he was in communication with the German Government on that subject.
Replying to a further question from Mr. Lansbury whether he would advise his colleagues to withdraw the White Paper, on defence plans until after the conversations, the Foreign Secretary said:

"No, sir, certainly not. I can hardly imagine that anyone would wish to take seriously the suggestion that if you have a statement to make you should reserve it until after such conversations take place."—British Wireless.

LOYALISTS SURE OF VICTORY

GREEK REBELLION END IN SIGHT

OFFENSIVE OPENS

Athens, March 6.

Hundreds of persons suspected of having collaborated with the rebels, instigated so the Government alleges, by the former Prime Minister and Liberal chief, M. Venizelos, have been imprisoned in a huge concentration camp at Thebes.

M. Tsaldaris, the Prime Minister, issued a statement this morning, saying: "The struggle to-day will enter upon a decisive phase. I can categorically assure the country that victory is absolutely certain."

Government forces are opening an offensive against the rebels along all fronts to-day, it is stated.—United Press.

DOLLAR RISES AGAIN

BUT MARKET STILL UNCERTAIN

The Hongkong dollar improved a farthing this morning to 1s. 11.3/8d., but the market remains somewhat uncertain. Business rates varying from 1s. 11.1/2d. to 2s. 0.1/8d. have been quoted, but buyers are holding off and no actual business was transacted up to 11 a.m.

Shanghai opened at 1s. 7.7/16d., on an uncertain market. The over-sold position there is rumoured to be as high as six millions. In London, silver advanced 1/8th spot and 3/16ths forward yesterday. American and speculators bought, while China and speculators sold on the rise, the market being steady.

HONOUR BANDIT TO DIE

KING OF MAQUIS CONDEMNED

LAST OF HIS BAND

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1804. Received, March 7, 6.50 a.m.)

Basta, March 6.

Andre Spada, last of the famed Corsican "honour brigands," was sentenced to death to-day.

He was tried in the Grand Theatre, this Robin Hood of Corsica, who for years had robbed the rich and fed the poor.

Religion, said he during his days of imprisonment before his trial, is all that is left for him. He has fashioned a rude wooden cross, which hangs about his neck. He mutters prayers as he paces his cell, and will see no-one but a priest.

Thirteen years ago Spada killed a kenderma. But for the crime, he might have escaped with a prison sentence, though he has been a chief of bandits for years. In April of 1923 he was arrested as he was leaving a church.

Recently his band has been tracked by police and troops, until every one of its number had been hunted off the hills. The last of the "honour bandits" will die in Spada, King of the Maquis, whose allies were murderers, but who fed a thousand of the poor and robbed and disciplined many a tyrant.—United Press.

CUT-THROAT COMPETITION

Mukden, March 7.

Chinese, as well as other non-Japanese goods, are suffering more keen competition with Japanese goods than ever before. The Japanese products are dumped on the Manchurian market at absurd prices.

In consequence of the dominance of Japanese trade interests, almost two thousand Chinese firms in the leading cities in Manchuria, such as Mukden, Kirin, Changchun and Harbin, are reported to have been compelled to close down in the past few months, and even a number of leading European firms have shared the same fate, as they lack all advantages, which are possessed by Japanese traders.—Central News.

Fernand Ponsard, of the French Colonial Infantry, now being held by police, made a statement of events that led to the incident on Sunday morning, at the inquiry held by the French police yesterday.

Japanese Attitude To Chian

NO CO-OPERATION WITH POWERS

SUSPICIONS UNJUST

Tokyo, March 6.

The Japanese Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs, Mr. Shigemitsu, to-day declared that Japan had flatly refused to participate in discussions to give international economic assistance to China.

He also denied that Japan had received overtures from China regarding a loan.

Further, he stated that Japan's plan to give assistance was merely an attempt to co-operate in an effort to assist China's economic recovery. Therefore, he said, there is no reason for Japan to be looked upon with suspicion by Great Britain, the United States or other powers.—United Press.

BRITAIN WATCHING

London, March 6.

In the House of Commons to-day, Sir John Simon told a questioner that in December last year, Great Britain had received and examined a tentative proposal for a loan to China.

It was decided, said Sir John, that a loan would not afford a satisfactory solution to the situation.

However, he said that Great Britain attached the utmost importance to the closest co-operation with the powers concerned, including China, and therefore they were watching the financial situation closely.—United Press.

NO BRITISH PROPOSALS

Peking, March 7.

The British Legation here has issued a statement saying: "In view of the misleading reports circulated on the subject, His Majesty's Minister desires to state that no proposals have been made by His Majesty's Government for a loan to China."

"The facts are that the present financial situation in China has recently formed the subject of an exchange of views between the Chinese and His Majesty's Government."

"His Majesty's Government is naturally anxious to see China afforded such assistance as may be possible in connection with these difficulties. They are convinced that in such a matter it is essential to act in consultation with other interested Governments, whom they have therefore informed of their discussions with the Chinese Government, and whose views they would desire to have on any concrete proposals that may emerge."

A member of the British Legation said that the statement referred to various newspaper reports, including foreign dispatches and the local Press comment.—United Press.

FRENCH DEPUTIES FIGHT DUEL

CORSICAN LAWYER BADLY WOUNDED

POLICE TAKE STEPS TO PROSECUTE BOTH

Paris, Mar. 6.

One of the fiercest duels fought in France for many years took place early this morning between two Corsican members of the Chamber of Deputies, M. Cesar Campinchi, the well-known barrister, and M. Horace de Carbriccia, the fiery director of a weekly newspaper, Le Gringoire.

M. Campinchi was badly hurt in the forearm by a bullet, which passed clean through the limb. He will be forced to spend several days in a nursing home.

Each of the men fired two shots in quick succession, but the aim of neither was particularly good.

The duel arose from a reference made to M. Campinchi in Le Gringoire recently. M. Carbriccia refused to publish a retraction or to make any apology, and accepted the challenge of M. Campinchi with alacrity.

The men went to the dueling site in Le Parc des Princes at dawn, accompanied by two distinguished men for seconds.

Usually the duellists exchange one shot and then embrace. But there was no reconciliation here. They each fired a second time, and when M. Campinchi staggered backwards, wounded, his antagonist made no move to assist him. They went their separate ways with their seconds.

Police arrived shortly after the fight and took particulars with a view to prosecuting both deputies, and Paris is wildly excited, in consequence.—Reuter Special.

AMERICA'S DEBT AND DOLLARS

NO DEVALUATION PLANNED?

MISLEADING REPORTS

Washington, March 6.

After a conference with the Press here to-day, wherein President Roosevelt said that he feels that the dollar and the country's debt structure are still out of line, an attaché of the White House declared that any inferences that the President contemplated further devaluation were absolutely untrue.

Also he declared that nothing that President Roosevelt had said could be construed as containing the slightest suggestion that there was any intention of further devaluation, which position must be made clear as a result of some quarters having misinterpreted President Roosevelt's remarks.

President Roosevelt had expressed the belief that the purchasing power of the dollar should be lifted further to ease the burden of debts, which, while having been reduced enormously, had not been reduced sufficiently, and because of this, the Debt column in the National Balance Sheet was still too high.

When asked whether the very fact that the dollar had not yet been adjusted to the debt alone meant further devaluation, the President laughed and shook his head in the negative.

His observation as the result of a question as to whether commodity prices had been stabilised, caused a drop in the dollar due to his indication to the Press that the dollar was not yet cheap enough in relation to the debt burden.

In Chicago, grain prices soared nearly two cents as a result of the President's statement, which was bullishly construed.—United Press.

ANOTHER VIEW

Washington, March 6.
Some quarters have interpreted President Roosevelt's remarks in respect of the dollar as a desire to promote increases in domestic prices without interfering with the present dollar.

The President, however, gave no indication of how much further the process should go.—United Press.

A.B. John Allan Kirkland, of H.M.S. Grimsby, who was recently shot in the head during a quarrel at Shanghai, is stated to be still in a serious condition, but shows a slight improvement.

PARIS EXCITED

Paris, March 6.

Two Deputies of the French Chamber to-day fought a duel on the football ground in Le Parc des Princes, and Paris is wildly excited over the story.

The famous lawyer, M. Cesar Campinchi, Deputy from Basta, Corsica, was shot through the right arm when he met another Corsican member of the Chamber, M. Horace de Carbriccia.

The quarrel was due to a number of articles which had appeared in a weekly newspaper, Le Gringoire, edited by de Carbriccia. Both men refused to be reconciled, even after the fight.—United Press.

Pictures Showing In London

VARIED THEMES

London, Feb. 12.
Last week came the London
presentation at the Tivoli, following the Paris premiere ten days ago, of the Teopitz film, "The Dictator". Anticipation had run
high over this picture of Eight-
teenth Century Copenhagen. In
the first place, it was known to have cost over £100,000 to make.
In the second place, it took a pro-
digious long time in the making.
In the third place, it boasted a
staff of technical experts gathered
from all parts of the world, and the celebrated Mr. Clive Brook was repatricated from Hollywood to play the title role opposite Miss Madeleine Carroll. In the fourth place, Victor Saville, borrowed
from Gaumont British, directed,
taking over in the early stages
from the American, Al Santell.
And in the fifth place, it marked
the maiden effort in solo production in this country of Signor Teopitz de Grand Ry, formerly joint managing director of London Films.

"The Dictator" is the sad little
story of an ambitious but public-spirited Hamburg doctor, by name of Struensee, who becomes enamoured of the young Queen of Denmark, Caroline Matilda.
After having cured the King of
Denmark of his colds, and freed
the people from the salt tax, the bread tax and sundry other disabilities, he arrives eventually on
the scaffold, where he dies, we presume, like a gentleman and a Hamburgher. Signor Teopitz is certainly an inspired investor of money. He puts all his cash on a film, not in it. Every scene
gleams and glows, the stars flash
jewels, the marble staircase of the Danish palace is, and looks like,
the biggest not ever erected in a British studio. "The Dictator" is
in short an opulent picture, in full
court dress with decorations.
But it is rather dull, and just about as entertaining as a high-

The other films of the week include "Evelyn Prentice" at the Empire. After their successful
team-work as husband and wife in
"The Thin Man" it was inevitable
that William Powell and Myrna
Loy should shortly appear again
in the same conjugal relationship.
This time they play their parts in
a rather solemn Court room story,
and a little child has been added
unto them to help over the more emotional scenes. Except for one first-rate dramatic sequence, with Isabel Jewell as the murdered
man's mistress, on the witness
stand, the film is played very quietly, very nonchalantly, and
the lines "thrown away" with an air of intense culture and breeding.

"The Gilded Lily" at the Plaza
is a tale of newspaper "ballyhoo"
in which a New York stenographer
is built up to international celebrity through having supposedly
refused the hand of an English
lord. It is pretty thin stuff,
written, shot, and generally played to formula, but the star, Claudette Colbert, seems to improve
with every film she tackles and
whenever the script gives her the opportunity she comes through
with a neat handful of laughs.

"Dangerous Corner" at the Plaza is an adaptation of the Priestley play and is one of the more intelligent contributions to
the screen, but not always the
most intelligible.

"Happiness Ahead" at the Regal
is the idyll of a poor little rich
girl and a nice, kind, musical window-cleaner with the heart of
a gentleman. Our old friend,
Dick Powell, the crooner, is the window-cleaner, but Josephine Hutchinson, the Gaynor-like newcomer who plays the part of the poor little rich girl, is what is known as "a real actress" meaning, of course, an actress from the

POTATO AND TOMATO SAVOURY

CUT one lb. of boiled potatoes
into slices, and season them
with pepper and salt. Open a tin of tomatoes, and pour away most of
the liquor. Beat the tomatoes
smoothly with a fork. Melt ½ oz.
butter in a sauce-pan, and stir into
it ½ oz. flour.

Cook for three minutes, stirring
all the time; then add gradually ¼ pint of milk, still stirring, and mixing smoothly. Add a pinch of salt, and continue stirring over gentle heat until the sauce has boiled for eight minutes. Add this sauce to the tomato puree, and heat
them together over the fire.

Now grease a pie-dish, and put
a layer of sliced tomatoes at the bottom, sprinkle with grated
cheese, and pour over some of the tomato. Repeat these layers—
potatoes, cheese, tomato, and so on,
until the ingredients are used up,
the last layer being of tomato.
Cover with fine bread-crumbs, put
a few bits of butter on top, and bake in the oven till a golden legitimate stage.

The clever cartoon fantasy
"Jole de Vivre" by Anthony Cross
and Hector Hoppen makes a timely reappearance, to coincide with the Disney exhibition at the Leicester
Galleries. A comparison between
the two styles of draughtsmanship
is interesting, and should provide an ample thesis for the academically inclined.

CHORUS GIRLS' "LIFE"

One year is the average screen
life of a Hollywood chorus girl.

More than 50,000 chorus girls
have applied at the studios during
the five years of screen musicals,
but only 2,000, at the most, have
found jobs.

While the hope for stardom is
the bait that lures them there, not more than a dozen girls have graduated from the chorus to permanent acting contracts.

The figures are the compilation
of Dave Gould, a Hollywood dance
director.

Gould can enumerate only nine

RESCUE CORPS IN YORKSHIRE

Skipton.

A voluntary rescue corps to deal
with accidents in the caves and
potholes of north-west Yorkshire
has been formed. The corps is representative of all the potholing
clubs in the North of England, and
its members have an extensive
knowledge of the difficulties likely to be met with in this case of rescue work.

The corps was officially formed
at a meeting at Skipton on Saturday, under the chairmanship of
Mr. E. E. Roberts, of Leeds, and
the clubs represented were the Yorkshire Ramblers' Club, the Craven Pothole Club, Skipton, the Northern Cavern and Fell Club,
whose members are chiefly recruited from Lancashire, the Crickstone
Club, the Leeds Cave Club, the Moor and Fell Club, York, and Giggleswick School, whose boys do
a certain amount of potholing.

The descent of potholes and
caves in the great depths of the limestone which lies beneath the Craven fells has for many years
been the pastime of the few, but
the adventure afforded is now attracting many others, and to the uninitiated dangers are to be encountered which might result in serious accidents. Potholers are becoming alarmed at the casual-
ness with which cyclists and ramblers venture the descent of a cave or pothole without having the
necessary equipment and experience to enable them to overcome
the difficulties they will meet. The removal of an injured man from
the underground caverns is a difficult undertaking, as there are narrow and tortuous passages
through which only a slim person
can crawl, and pitches which even
in daylight would be regarded as
a severe test for the rock-climber.

The rescue corps which has been formed will, it has been decided,
render assistance to an injured
man whether or not he is a member
of a club. The cost of the necessary equipment is being borne by
the clubs, and arrangements have been made to enable the corps to receive prompt information of an accident. The corps is to cooperate with landowners, hotel and
boarding-house keepers, and the police stations in "pothole land,"
which stretches from Kirkby Lonsdale to the head of Niddedale.
The chief potholing area, however,
is that bounded by the three Yorkshire peaks, Wharfedale, Ingieborough, and Penyghent, and in case of accident in this area notification will be given to four rescue
wards.

girls who have gone from the
screen chorus to prominence in the acting ranks. They are Marion Marsh, Virginia Bruce, Betty
March, Jean Howard, Toby Wing,
Ruth Hall, Barbara Weeks, and Paulette Goddard. Only the two first mentioned have attained any outstanding degree of success,
while Paulette Goddard has yet
to prove herself under Charlie
Chaplin's sponsorship.

Gould, of course, is not including the girls who go to Hollywood
from the Broadway chorus with film contracts. The number of these who have made good is much larger.

KIPLING TALES TO BE FILMED

A party have arrived in Bom-
bay to film Rudyard Kipling's
"Soldiers Three" for Gaumont-British. The scenario is stated to have been approved by Mr. Kipling.

Some 80 tons of equipment have already arrived. This includes military uniforms and rifles of the 19th century, sufficient for a whole battalion. "Shots" will be made of Bombay and up-country
life and along the frontier. A battle scene between frontier
tribes will be enacted, and for thousands of "extras" will be engaged.

Mr. S. Bonnett, the cameraman
who was attached to the Everest
expedition, will take the scenes.

"GRAVE SOCIAL QUESTION"

The existence of undesirable clubs in London was referred to as a grave social question by Mr. Douglas Gordon, chairman of the Licensing Justices for St. James's Division, at the general annual licensing meeting of the justices at the Vestry Hall, Dean Street, Soho, recently. He suggested that immediate steps should be taken to control clubs so that only those that were properly conducted should remain on the register.

It was reported by the clerk to the justices that during the past year there had been no convictions or complaints against licence holders in the division.

The Chairman said that the fact that there had been no complaints would seem to imply that the position, so far as the consumption of alcoholic liquor was concerned, was very satisfactory. Indeed, so far as the licensed premises were concerned, it was perfectly satisfactory. Licence holders, the police, and the Bench co-operated to bring about a state of things on licensed premises on which they could all congratulate themselves. But the Bench was face to face with a very grave social question, over and above licences. That was the question of undesirable clubs.

A very large number of clubs existed in that division. According to the police returns the number at December 31 was 193. There were clubs such as the Carlton and the Reform which were household words, and there was quite a number of clubs in the division which existed for those employed in theatres and elsewhere. Those were quite well conducted and with them they had every sympathy. But, over and above that, there was a very large number of clubs of a very undesirable character.

"UNTRAMMELED"

"I went into this matter, first of all, some months ago," said the Chairman, "and the more I collected details the more lurid did the picture become with regard to these clubs. The sale of drink is practically untrammelled by any restriction for many of them are practically proprietary clubs where the drink is not the property of the members, and, in many cases, they are centres of social disorder. I need not tell you that the facts are that any person can go to a police station, pay a fee of 5s., submit a short list of names, and found a club. In this division that power is taken advantage of by convicted criminals and other undesirable people.

"Our interest in the matter comes in this way. We are responsible, with the assistance of the licence holders and the police, for the control of the sale of drink in this division. All our efforts are frustrated by the existence of 'unlicensed publichouses.' It is most unfair to the licence holders. There is another point to which I personally attach considerable importance, and that is that the odium of intemperance in any particular part of London is always put down to licensed houses. As a matter of fact, in many divisions, and more particularly in this division, it is due to these clubs of an undesirable nature.

"We are unanimous—every member of the Bench present is agreed that it is most urgent that steps should be taken to alter this state of things. We want to take advantage of this opportunity to say publicly that in our opinion it is imperative that steps should be taken for the control of existing clubs in such a manner that only those that afford some reasonable comfort for members and are properly conducted should remain on the register.

"We think that some administrative measure should be taken with regard to the foundations of new clubs; that inquiry should be made, and that only persons of reputable character should be able to start a club. We understand that there are objections raised by some clubs to a system of inspection and supervision. We cannot understand why this should be so. We should have thought that every club which was properly conducted would welcome supervision as eliminating them from the class of doubtful clubs. It is not for us to say what steps ought to be taken, but we feel very strongly that the present position of things in this division is a grave scandal, and that it minimizes the efforts which are made to bring the sale of drink within proper limits. We want to bring forward our strong opinion that steps should be taken immediately to control and restrict the sale of drink in bogus clubs and at the same time suppress grave social disorders brought about by their existence."

The remarks of the chairman were applauded by those present.

Six applications by social clubs for upper licence certificates under section 2 (2) of the Licensing Act, 1921, were dealt with, and, of these, four were granted and two refused. A number of term licences in respect of restaurants were re-granted. Full licences were granted to the Arston Cafe, Argyll Street, and the Restaurant D'Italie, Greek Street and Church Street. With regard to the latter, it was stated that D'Italie had been known in Soho for over 80 years, although not continuously on the same premises. Formerly, there had been a full licence, but in recent years the licence had been confined to beer and wine. Two new off-licences were granted. An application for the transfer of the licence in respect of the Lord Bel-

SHANGHAI SUICIDE

YUGO-SLAV RESIDENT TAKES OWN LIFE

Shanghai, Mar. 6.
Mr. J. P. Ryabine, prominent Shanghai resident, and unofficial representative here of the Yugo-Slavian Kingdom, committed suicide this afternoon under dramatic circumstances.

Following the discovery of the body, police authorities in the French Concession revealed that a warrant had been issued for the arrest of Ryabine on charges of complicity in gigantic narcotic smuggling and manufacturing operations.

Two French citizens, Estublier and Lespinasse, who were implicated by Dr. Barth, a German, were last week sentenced to terms of imprisonment at the French Consular Court on charges in connection with the same operations, and it is alleged that Barth, who was sentenced by a Chinese Court in 1933 for a similar offence, also implicated Ryabine.

Estublier, who was proprietor of the plant, was sentenced to one year's imprisonment and fined 3,000 francs, the sentence being suspended for five years. Lespinasse was sentenced to three months' imprisonment. Both men have appealed.

Ryabine committed suicide by taking poison and, to make doubly sure, severing the arteries on both arms.

He was the unofficial representative in Shanghai of Yugo-Slavia and had no diplomatic status, being elected to the position by the local Yugo-Slavian community.

The tragedy has created a profound shock, as Ryabine, who was 48 years of age, was extremely popular, especially among his countrymen.—United Press.

AGED AMERICAN JURIST DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Washington, Mar. 6.
Two days before he would have celebrated his 94th birthday, death claimed Mr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, former Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

The aged jurist died in the early hours of this morning, after a strenuous fight for his life.

He collapsed following a severe attack of pneumonia. Three days ago, when physicians commenced using oxygen, it was realised that he could not live.

Dr. Thomas A. Clayton, the attending physician said, "The end was as peaceful as I have ever seen."

The funeral will take place on Friday, which would have been Mr. Holmes' 94th birthday. The service will be held in All Souls Church, Washington, at noon. All Supreme Court Justices will be honorary pall bearers.

A private military burial will take place at Arlington, since Mr. Holmes was a Civil War hero.—United Press.

BURMESE FRONTIER

CHINESE AND BRITISH COMMISSION

London, Mar. 6.
Replying in the House of Commons to Captain Fuller (Conservative, Ardwick), Sir John Simon announced that the question of establishing a Chinese and British frontier commission, under a neutral chairman, to investigate the problem of the Burma-Yunnan border, was being discussed presently with the Chinese Government.

Captain Fuller urged that the investigation be expedited owing to the approaching monsoon.

Sir John Simon replied that he thought that in any event "we shall have to wait until late in the year because of the rainy season."—Reuter.

AIR LINK PROSPECTS

A definite move is seemingly about to be made to link up Hongkong with the Imperial Airways services to Britain and Australia. The British Air Estimates, of which details have just been issued, make provision for an experimental service between Bangkok and Hongkong, part of the arrangement on its financial side being that this Colony should contribute a substantial proportion of the cost.
This contribution will evidently be by way of a subsidy, in which connection it is known that the Hongkong Government is ready to provide $300,000 for such a purpose, once a practical scheme is evolved. The authorities here have for some considerable time past been pressing the Imperial Government to take the necessary steps to link Hongkong with the Imperial Airways service, and the fact that financial provision is now being made provides evidence that the Home authorities are no less anxious to see the project become a reality. Some eighteen months ago, Imperial Airways intimated that it was deeply interested in the scheme, and suggested that it would necessary, by whatever means the service was established, for Hongkong to make a definite contribution, in addition to receiving from the Post Office an undertaking to hand its mails exclusively to any British service that might be started. A regular weekly service was then envisaged, and it was expected that the Hongkong-London route could be covered in ten or eleven days, this being later reduced to eight or nine days after the introduction of night-flying on part of the route. The scheme now contemplated doubtless follows these main lines. No difficulties are expected in securing flying rights over Siam or Indo-China, but so far the negotiations for securing such rights over Chinese territory have not resulted in an agreement. However, there is no absolute necessity to fly over Chinese soil, as the sea route can be followed from Indo-China. At the same time, it would obviously be to the benefit of China to be able to extend her services to Hongkong, in return for a concession enabling British planes to fly over Chinese territory to the south of this Colony. There would, indeed, be mutual advantages about such an arrangement, and it is sincerely to be hoped that an understanding will soon be reached covering these two points.

NOTES OF THE DAY

JAPAN'S FEARS

The statement of a spokesman of the Tokyo Foreign Office yesterday that Japan did not approve of a plan for the international assistance of China because she was afraid that it might lead to eventual international control of China, may amuse some people. How much less there is to fear from international influence in Nanking than from domination by some single power! It surely must have occurred to the Japanese spokesman that observers would seize upon this attitude to use in argument against unilateral action of any sort in China. If Japan has reason to fear international influence upon the Nanking Government, it is surely reasonable to suppose that other nations would fear the consequences of Japan's dictation. The Nine Power Treaty was signed for the protection of China against aggression from any belligerent nation.
No signatory of this treaty has shown the least desire to interfere in China's affairs, except Japan;
and she has interfered in a very effectual manner, simply seizing control of an immense expanse of Chinese territory. We are not prepared to agree with Japan that this sort of policy does China any good. It seems that the purpose of Great Britain and America, apart from their natural desire to protect their own interests in the Far East, is to protect China. An economically sound nation friendly to them is the aim of Western Powers; and to attain this object international cooperation is necessary. Those nations will serve themselves best who make the welfare of China their first consideration. For the moment they should not need to be particularly concerned with Japan, her motives, her ambitions or her delicate susceptibilities. China requires assistance; Britain and the United States, and other nations also, in all probability, are willing to assist her. If Japan wants to join them and do something for China, she would appear to be at liberty to do so. If she objects to an international loan it would be interesting to know how she proposes to prevent it.

UNITY IS STRENGTH

Great Britain was, and still is, in danger. The question in the stupendous crisis of 1931 was, how it was to be saved from the immediate peril of financial chaos and disaster. The peril was averted in the nick of time, but it is not to be supposed that such a crisis can be cleared in a single bound. That is not the way of economic crisis.
Recovery comes only by slow and painful degrees, and the whole strength and wisdom of the nation must be bent to that purpose. At such a time it does not do to cling to partisan politics. Names must be forgotten and facts must be faced. This was the burden of the message which Mr. Ramsay Macdonald sent to the conference of student Unionists, held in Edinburgh recently. The difficulties of the times, he said, make integration and concentration essential to every people. In proof of this we have only to look around upon the state of the world. All countries are making a corporate effort, and it would be vain for us to attempt to compete against them while we remained unorganised for the general contest. We must make use of "all that is still vital in the different traditions of political thought—Conservative, Liberal, and Labour. We dare not neglect any weapon which is still effective."
This country, like others, saw the need for united action in the greatest crisis of all, the World War. Yet that was a simple issue in comparison with that in which the nations are still involved. An artificial stimulus kept the nations at the height of endeavour. That stimulus has been removed, and now all that can be depended upon is the intelligence, determination,
and perseverance of the people,
which will keep them alive to the seriousness of the position and help them to recognise wise governmental action when they see it.
And the first essential of action is unity, not only of parties but of national ideals.

AN UNSAFE JOB

There is a non-commissioned army officer in Cuba who seems to have about as strange and risky a job as any soldier could dream of.
This man, Sergt. Jose Trabanca, is one they call on when a bomb is found about the streets. On such occasions he hurries to the spot, picks up the bomb, carries it to the harbour and tosses it into the sea.
Considering the fact that bombs
are fairly ticklish things to handle, Sergent Trabanca has a job which few people will envy him. During the last year he has been called on to take no fewer than 958 bombs to a place of safety. And that total, incidentally, gives a bright little sidelight on the state of public unrest in Cuba. The troubled republic must be producing malcontents at a record pace, if bombs are being thrown about the streets at that rate.

"TICKING OFF" TOWN DWELLERS

By HENRY GOUDE
HORTICULTURAL SUPERINTENDENT,
NORFOLK COUNTY COUNCIL.

THE condition of England's farmlands is the concern of every thinking individual, as the future vigour, health, and continuance of the race are dependent on the full use and productive power of England's soil.

History proves that unless a nation keeps its roots in the soil that nation decays and eventually becomes a byword among the nations of the earth. I believe that the neglect of land development is not wilful but is almost entirely due to misunderstanding.

I think it is high time that, in his own interests, the town dweller should drop his attitude of indifference to the problems of the countryside. One thing clear is that the countryman does not intend to take a back seat in relation to the town-man in a matter in which both are vitaly concerned.

The large proportion of the population brought up in towns only considers farming from the point of view of the cost of its food supply. This viewpoint is, of course, most important, and it also decides Government action in dealing with agricultural problems.

In order to keep prices down, agriculture is to-day a heavily subsidised industry. We in the country are forced to use this help to the fullest possible extent in order to carry on, but in our inner hearts
we would prefer a straight, clear market for our produce that would leave a profit on production. By reducing the exorbitant costs of distribution this could be attained without raising costs to the consumer. Our farmers are the best in the world, and only ask for fair and just treatment.

In an industrial country like England there is always the clashing of town and country interests.
The industrial areas consider only their own problems, which are mainly concerned with the manufacture of goods and the sale of them at a profit. The farmer's problems are analogous. He also must produce and sell at a profit;
but, except for the directly and indirectly subsidised crops, his market is glutted with foreign goods produced under conditions of labour
that are impossible in England.

If our markets were flooded with manufactured goods produced under similar conditions, the upsurge would be immediate in all the affected districts, and the threat to livelihoods would be checked by emergency action of Parliament. That is actually the difference between town and country—the trenchant clamour of the towns and the isolated and feeble cries of the country interests.

Taking the long view, we in the country believe that the interests of towns and the countryside are mutual and identical, and this conclusion is supported by scientific opinion. Unless there is the virile country-bred stock to draw upon and replenish the worn-out human debris of manufacturing activity,
the health and wealth of the towns will eventually disappear. Take stock of any crowd of people in any industrial town to-day—there is no need to delve into medical statistics; the degeneration is only too obvious.

The countryside does not consider the health viewpoint of agriculture,
but we do ponder over the problem of how the countryside can be made prosperous. The trend of national policy and lost international trade will, we think, eventually link the two more closely together.

We do definitely state that agriculture can be lifted out of the slough of depression as soon as the nation is prepared to act. Such a step would practically solve the unemployment problem. The simplest of several methods to achieve this desirable end is to grow all the dairy produce needed by the nation and give the home-grown article a preference over any imported dairy produce.

This measure could be enacted without any serious loss to our foreign trade. In some years a country such as Denmark has taken manufactured goods from us to the value of £7,000,000. She has drawn from us in the same year about £30,000,000 for dairy produce, all of which English soil could have yielded.

With that large sum irrigating
our agriculture, a firm home market could be established that would more than compensate for any loss in our exports. By a further revision of our international trading agreements we could give our agriculture about £100,000,000 of additional business annually and encourage a healthy root action in the great basic industry of the race.

I have not the slightest doubt that we could produce all the necessary food required. England today is cultivated only in spots.
We could increase our production a hundredfold by cultivating the uncultivated and semi-cultivated land.
The farmers and market gardeners of England are eagerly awaiting the opportunity of increasing their responsibilities and the nation's food supplies. With a stable economic national policy, top-gear results would be achieved in a very short period.

It should be remembered that English-grown food is the natural food of English people. The Roman advice was to drink the wine of the country—in other words, to live on the products of their home localities. Roman writers stated that the ancient Britons did not begin to grow old until they reached the age of 70.
They lived on the food they grew themselves, and we have many men in Norfolk over 70 still in the prime of vigorous life, due to the same basic fact.

It will be argued that we cannot grow the cheap wheat of the Argentine and Canada. America, at one period, ruined the wheat-producing countries of Europe. It is not a question of cost, but of how long we can afford to impoverish our land and buy foods
that we can produce ourselves.

Life on the land is the ideal life.
Deep in the hearts of all of us
there is the desire to return to our native element. Why not turn this desire into a natural channel and revivify the pride and joy of the race in the farm lands of England?
There is the residue of England's health and strength, and there also is the only foundation for rebuilding the nation's prosperity.

The Very Idea!

OUR CHINESE LESSON
By Prof. Horatio Bogg, M.Sc.

A rumour has spread that the Chinese language is not what has been said of it—that it needs rescuing from a mass of split infinititives and verbs ending with a preposition.

Touched by the pathetic appeals of numerous would-be learners of Chinese, Bogg, with the characteristic zeal he has always dedicated to the cause of a suffering humanity groping for literary light, has latterly undertaken much research work amongst the archives of the University Chinese Library. He is happy to be now able to announce that Chinese calligraphy and composition, being singularly free from those faults, are above reproach, and on the score of a virginal purity insisted upon by the most conservative of scholars, may safely be handled with other than a pair of tongs.

He finds that the real danger is not in the language itself, but one threatened to its purity by a foreign element that is fairly ruining its correct intonation.
Interviewed as to the exact nature of this danger, that eminent Chinese scholar, Prof. Pooh Bah, has told Bogg that his countrymen have been made painfully aware of it under the name of Ockseeford.

Encouraged by the success, he has secured, and anxious to be classified as an authority on Chinese literature, Bogg to-day has proceeded beyond the mere mean and far too stage, and give his first Chinese lesson along the following lines:

How the heck are you?—Nee
keo ho la ma?

This thing is my wife.—Nee koh
yeh kei ngoh koh to poh.

Excuse me, you are staying on my wife.—Wai, nee tsai ngoh koh
to poh.

Oh, how I hate my wife!—
Haihah, ngoh ho taung ngoh koh
to poh!

You may therefore step on her again.—Nee koh yeh tsai kuh loh toh too tak.

You may also step on my mother-in-law.—Nee koh yeh tsai mai ngoh koh ngot mo.

My mother-in-law has done me wrong.—Ngoh koh ngoi mo 'm tai tuck ngoh chu.

Boy, bring a whiskey-and-soda.—
Boy, yew waiseckee sordah.

Bottoms up!—Yam sing!

Hi—cup—Hi—cup.

Have another!—Tsai yam koh.

I am seeing two of y—o—o—u.

—Ngoh keen yow aching koh u.

Go to Halifax!—Nai lui seel

Come up and see me sometime.—
Nee koh yeh seung nei keen ngo.

In addition to the above essentials, Bogg has a choice stock of Chinese onthas. These, of course, cannot be printed in this column,
but he is willing to whisper them into your ear, the rates being ten cents per onth, with an additional charge of five cents for each repetition.

Sayings of the Week

This Government reminds me of a jelly. There is, however, one difference. You don't have to keep a jelly for five years.—
Darling Dabchick.

The longer I have a dog, the longer, so to speak, I have him.
My latest is a dachshund.—Canon Nohow.

Three things used to make a gentleman: port, fox-hunting, and the study of the classics. Now it's gin, poker, and continental novels—in a cheap translation, of course.—Mrs. Pipehanger.

Every day some fool invents a new vitamin. I believe there are ten of 'em now. But I still can't find anyone who knows how to cook a bloter.—General Fitzhailbut.

Vignette

Three girls share the same seat on the ferry. None of them is attractive, though all are show-ily dressed. All three appear to be bored, disatisfied, not much interested in anything.

No. 1 is plump, sharp-featured,
wears an astonishing array of colours. A blue hat, a mulberry suit, multi-coloured scarf. She has recently been to Paris, I gather, and has a lot to say about clothes.

No. 2, in a grey squirrel coat,
has had out her gold compact most of the way over. She has twice retouched her lips and cheeks; taken off her beret, and combed her nicely-permed hair.
Even now, she seems displeased
with the result.

So am I.

No. 3 is a slim girl in black.
She has done a little knitting and has talked about Janet Gaynor.
Her conversation is so stupid that I should greatly like to shake her.

It has taken nature some millions of years to produce this little lot.

"Now this should last you all week if those insurance salesmen take you to lunch."

INSTRUCTIONSCHOOL CURRICULUM
PROPOSAL

London, Mar. 6.
An Inter-Departmental Committee is being set up to devise road safety instruction for children as part of the curriculum in schools of England and Wales.

The members will include representatives of the Board of Education, the Transport Ministry, the Home Office, local authorities and school teachers, and evidence will be taken from motor-ists and other organizations.

At the request of local education authorities, a scheme has been worked out for selected officers of police traffic patrols to give brief lectures to illustrate road danger in elementary schools of the Metropolitan Police district, and the use of the cinema in schools for the same purpose will also be considered.

A similar Committee is to be established for Scotland.—British Wireless.

RECENT NAVAL
COLLISIONH.M.S. HOOD QUICKLY
REPAIRED

London, Mar. 6.
The damage sustained by H.M.S. Hood, flagship of the Battle Cruiser Squadron, in the recent collision has been quickly repaired by the Naval Dockyard at Portsmouth, and, flying the flag of Rear Admiral Bailey, the Hood left yesterday to rejoin the fleet at Malta.

H.M.S. Renown will dock at Portsmouth next Friday for repairs, which are likely to take longer to complete.—British Wireless.

GENERAL FACES
GRAVE CHARGESRELEASE ON BAIL REFUSED

Sochow, March 7.
The Kiangsu High Court has rejected the application for the release on bail of General Ching Shu-jen, former Chairman of the Sinkiang Provincial Government, who has been detained on charges of malfeasance, masquerading the populace and concluding allegedly illegal treaties with the Soviet Union.—United Press.

ANOTHER CHOPPER
ATTACKVICTIM SENT TO HOSPITAL

Another chopper attack came to the notice of the police yesterday, when a man named Tan Wai, living at 276 Taiman Street, Shamshuipo, was admitted to the Kwong Wah Hospital with a serious head wound. The victim was set upon from behind when walking in the street, by an assailant who threw the weapon away and disappeared after the assault. Enquiries at a number of addresses where the man is known have so far been without result.

BRITAIN'S COAL TRADE RIVALSITALY BUYS FROM INDO-CHINA

London, Mar. 6.
British coal exporters to Italy are faced with fresh competition from an unexpected quarter, namely, French Indo-China.

According to the Financial Times a contract was recently placed for shipments of coal from Indo-China to Italy. It is understood the total is at least 30,000 tons.—Reuter.

RECENT COURT
MARTIALINDIAN SENTENCED
FOR PERJURY

Nursing Sopyi Tiwari, the principal witness at the court martial of Sub. Asst. Surgeon Jemadar Bawant Singh on charges of receiving bribes and for which he was dismissed the service, has been sentenced by summary court martial to four months' rigorous imprisonment and dismissed the service for perjury in regard to his evidence.

ROYAL BALINESE
DANCERSColourful Performance
Last Night

The Royal Balinese Dancers opened their Hongkong season at the Queen's Theatre last night before a crowded audience which was well rewarded the fare offered being as unusual as it was fascinating.

The entire work of the company is based upon Balinese art dating back to centuries ago, faithfully preserved by the descendants of the old Hindu tribes that ruled Java in ages long past. The background of temples and sacrificial altars, emphasises the mythical dances presented, providing entrancing scenes, which the music, with its quaint rhythm and quality, completes the decidedly fantastic whole.

Whether a solo dance or an ensemble, the beholder visualises the grotesque frescoes to be seen to-day in the ruins of ancient temples of a particular civilisation, or is at times reminded of the weird posing perpetuated in the Balik embroideries. The difference is, of course, that the memories conjured up of such ancient art are suddenly revealed in living form, allowing one to understand the inspiration which created the original designs, whether in sculpture or other media.

At times, there is of necessity a certain amount of monotony, but it must be conceded that the work of the whole company is of an exceedingly high standard.

No less than eleven legends were interpreted, in which the movements of the performers varied from almost eerie representations of animal life to the frenzied rhythm of a human sacrificial offering against a realistic temple background with its huge god and receding incense.

The music is especially good, particularly the westernised versions of harmonies and melodies peculiar to this particular people.

The premiere was sponsored by Mr. M. J. Quist, the Consul General for the Netherlands, and among those present were H. E. the General Officer Commanding, Major-General O. C. Borrett and party, Hon. Sir Thomas and Lady Southern and party, His Honour Mr. Justice A. D. A. MacGregor and Mrs. MacGregor, Hon. Sir Henry and Lady Pollock, Hon. Sir William and Lady Shenton and party, Hon. Sir Shouson Chow, Hon. Mr. T. H. King, Commodore and Mrs. A. Elliott, Pay-Comdr. Porter, Hon. Mr. Edwin Taylor and party, Hon. Mr. C. G. Alabaster and Mrs. Alabaster, Hon. Mr. J. J. Paterson and Mrs. Paterson, Hon. Mr. N. L. Smith and Mrs. Smith, Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau and Mrs. Chau, and Hon. Dr. W. D. A. Moore and Mrs. Moore.

A SEMI-PERMANENT
SEAT FOR CHINABRITAIN'S PROPOSAL TO LEAGUE

Geneva, Mar. 4.
Closing its session here yesterday, the International Union for the League of Nations adopted the proposal submitted by the British delegation to grant a semi-permanent seat in the League Council to China.

The proposal notably held that it was necessary to grant more adequate representation to Asiatic powers in the League Council.

At the same time, the seriousness of political problems in the Far East, the vastness of China's territory, and the fact that China has a very large population are stressed.—Havas.

VALE "LAZARUS"
MR. L. S. GREENHILL
RETIRING

With the sailing of the s.s. Empress of Japan on March 22, the Colony will be losing one of its older residents in Mr. L. S. Greenhill who will be severing his connection with the Far East after a period of almost twenty-nine years.

Mr. Greenhill first arrived in Hongkong on July 5, 1906, to join the staff of Messrs. Butterfield & Swire, remaining here for two years after which he was transferred to Swatow and then to Shanghai. In March, 1914, Mr. Greenhill returned to the Colony and in September, 1916, resigned from his firm to enter the Hongkong Land Investment & Agency Co., Ltd., with which Company he has stayed ever since.

In March, 1917, Mr. Greenhill left for home in order to "join up" and, after delivering in France his charge of 2,400 Wei Hai Wei coolies, entered as a Cadet in the Artillery Training School at Trowbridge. He received his Commission in January, 1918, and was posted to No. 308 Siege Battery 6th Howitzers, being present at Ypres in March, 1918, and remaining with the Battery until March, 1919.

On being demobilized, Mr. Greenhill returned to Hongkong and, following on an assistant-secretaryship, was confirmed as Secretary of the Land Company in April, 1923.

During his residence in the Far East, Mr. Greenhill has been closely associated with volunteer movements and holds the Colonial Forces long service medal. His service extends from the old "Right-half No. 2" of 1906, through the Shanghai Volunteers, the Hongkong Scouts Company, to the existing Army Service Corps Cadre, from which latter he has only just resigned.

In the realm of sport Mr. Greenhill will be best remembered by his interest in the Hongkong Cricket and Royal Hongkong Golf Clubs, of which he has held the honorary secretaryships; the appreciation of his services has been signified by his being elected a Life Member of both. He assumed the Cricket Club duties in November, 1919, and gave his best efforts on behalf of the members up to January of this year. It is doubtful if, apart from the Committee, the amount of time and care which Mr. Greenhill has expended is realised by those who have benefited therefrom. Fanning has had the advantage of Mr. Greenhill's enthusiasm and he is to be largely thanked for the present quality of the "greens" which have been his especial department. In his younger days Mr. Greenhill played "rugger" and represented Shanghai against Tientsin in 1913.

It is Mr. Greenhill's intention ultimately to settle down in Vancouver Island where he hopes to find full vent for his hobby of gardening. With him there sail Mrs. Greenhill and his two younger daughters, and they will take with them the best of good wishes for the future.

STARTLING DEFEAT OF 'SPURS BY THE ARSENAL

CLUB BEAT THE ARMY WIN TRIANGULAR HOCKEY AND BECOME NEW CHAMPIONS

(By R. H. B.)

The Club played dazzling hockey at King's Park yesterday afternoon to defeat the Army by one goal to nil and win the Triangular Tournament title for this season. In 1934 the Civilians were the wooden-spoonists but this year the reverse is the order, the Navy, last year's winners, occupying last place in the tourney.

The return of Geoffrey Divett gave some incentive to the Club forward line, which, it will be recalled, was crippled owing to Divett's absence in their last encounter with the military side. Divett worked very hard and was often seen in action in defence. The Club resorted, for the most part, to the four-half backs game. J. L. Telley, who played well at inside-left, dropping back, to give valuable assistance to the defence, especially in the closing stages of the game when the Army opened their shoulders.

POTTER SHINES

J. E. Potter played an outstanding game at right-half for the Club. He had to mark Kartar Singh and Lal Singh and made a number of fine saves. Potter was injured in the second half and had to leave the field for a few minutes.

Jack Rodgers, the Club skipper who is proceeding on leave next week, played a very safe game at left back. His first time hitting was a feature, and by this he saved the Club from many difficult situations.

C. L. Gregory between the sticks, brought off one or two wonderful saves and generally played a safe game. On one occasion he cleared magnificently on the circle line when Kartar Singh was in possession.

The Army forward line was ragged. Combination was sorely lacking. One of the main reasons for their failure was the fact that Kartar Singh was too individualistic, being robbed time and again by Potter. An earlier pass to Lal Singh or to Senior on numerous occasions might have meant goals.

CLUB WINNERS PLAY WELL

Clive Garthwaite put in a lot of useful work in attack. May, on the right wing was weak with his centre. He found in Sommer a difficult defender to pass.

The Army intermediate line, Williams, Dulla Singh and Alf Din had all their work cut out in holding the speedy Club forwards. Owen Hughes, on the right wing, and Norman Mackay, on the left flank, were conspicuous for their splendid bursts of speed.

Metcalf was not very safe, while Chan Bahadur was the better of the backs. Hollingsworth was generally safe.

Willy Reed, the Club pivot, played a very fine game being a constant menace to Senior who did not seem to be able to do a thing right.

Arthur Lay, who scored the Club's deciding goal early in the game, handled many efforts subsequently. He tried too much petty attack work instead of getting rid of the ball quicker.

TOURNAMENT GOAL-SCORERS

Goal-scorers in the Triangular Hockey Tournament are as follows:

Joe Davis Makes Record Break

RUN OF OVER 2,000

London, Feb. 14.

Joe Davis, the United Kingdom champion, set up a world's billiards record under the baulk line rule at Thurston's yesterday, when, in his Gold Cup Handicap heat against Tom Reece he completed a break of 2,002.

The Chesterfield player had the table when play was resumed with an overnight unfinished 383. Quickly settling down, he reached four figures in 33 minutes, and completed his brilliant effort in one hour 52 minutes.

Previous best break under the baulk line rule was Clark McConachy's 1,943 against Walter Lindrum in Brisbane last season.

DAVIS' "HAT-TRICK"

Davis' big break was his third four-figure run in the tournament. Previously he had made 1,168 and 1,677.

For the session Davis scored 1,775 and averaged 222, his last three innings realising 44, 31, and 50 (unfinished).

Reece, who had eight innings for the session, scored 102, including a break of 71. Interval scores:—Davis (in play), 5,052; Reece, 672. Davis increased his lead to over 5,000 at night, scoring 1,260 to Reece's 618. Best breaks were 795 (full), 129, and 236 to the leader, and 99, 287, and 70 (unfinished) to Reece. Closing scores:—Davis, 6,292; Reece (in play), 1,290.

Club:—A. T. Lay (3), G. E. R. Divett and S. Reed one each.

Army:—C. C. Garthwaite (3), Kartar Singh (3), Lal Singh (2), Aya Singh (2), Alf Din (2), Senior one.

SIX CLEAR GOALS

EVERTON HELD

London, Mar. 6.

The Arsenal gained an astonishing league victory at White Hart Lane to-day when they defeated Tottenham by six clear goals and thereby take a lead of two points over the rest of first division teams.

This smashing success on foreign soil makes Arsenal firm favourites for the League Championship, and demonstrates that now they are free of Cup worries, they are more formidable than ever.

On the other hand the defeat is serious to the Spurs who are languishing next to the bottom in the league table, and are in dire danger of relegation.

Another sensation was provided by Hull City, who journeyed to Bolton to meet the second division favourites and English Cup semi-finalists and won by the odd goal in three. This is Bolton's eighth defeat of the season and it has considerably enhanced Brentford's championship prospects.

Chelsea picked up a welcome point at Stamford Bridge by sharing four goals with Birmingham, who are also lowly placed, while Leeds accomplished an excellent performance in holding Everton to a draw on the Toffe-Towners' ground. Eight goals were netted in this match.

Huddersfield easily accounted for West Bromwich, who had to travel, while Portsmouth did creditably to visit Preston and hold the North Enders to a draw.

In the third division Aldershot were unexpectedly prevented from beating Millwall, the game being scoreless, while in the northern section, Hartlepool found their own ground sufficient advantage to beat Rotherham.

GUY CHENG TO PLAY HERE

EXHIBITION AT THE C.R.C.

As announced yesterday, Guy Cheng, one of China's nominated Davis Cup players for 1935 is in Hongkong, and the Chinese Recreation Club are arranging for him to appear in an exhibition match at the C.R.C. on Sunday afternoon next, starting at 3 o'clock.

Tsui Wai-pui, the Colony champion will be Cheng's opponent, and they will play a best of five sets match. The match should be well worth seeing.

A small entrance fee will be charged to help defray the expenses of the C.R.C. "At Home" to be held on Saturday, March 23. At this function, an exhibition mixed doubles match, will be played between L. Goldman and Miss R. Hancock, the Colony champions and Tsui Wai-pui and Mrs. J. F. Kayll.

RUMJAHNS TAKE THINGS EASY: TSUI WAI-PUY IMPRESSES

PORTUGUESE WIN HAPPY-GO-LUCKY MATCH AGAINST CHINESE

(By "Veritas")

With the Rumjahn cousins playing Garden Party tennis, Tsui Wai-pui practising and getting his wide repertoire of strokes into working order, and the Lo brothers struggling hard against unexpected opposition, spectators at the Hongkong Cricket Club yesterday were provided with variety if nothing else when the 1935 Open Tennis Championships were continued.

Striking a mean average, it cannot be said the standard of play on the six occupied courts was particularly high. Yet of interest there was plenty.

The Rumjahns played strictly in accordance with the demands of their match against Tollington and Ravenhill, the Army's only representatives in the doubles. When on a few occasions in the first set the trend of the game called for a little extra effort, they supplied it, and thereby won quite comfortably 6-4, 6-1.

STILL IN CHAMPIONS' CLASS

Both cousins produced sufficient evidence to satisfy that they are still well in the champions' class. Siridar has not yet overcome his penchant for strokes that are not steady in every other department.

H. D. Rumjahn was acedemic, volleyed as usual very crisply and pulling out an occasional "Exclusive" shot.

Tollington and Ravenhill were "all at sea" in their work, and three times in the course of match gave away points by over-calling each other. Tollington brought off the most spectacular shot, and by the same token was the more erratic player. He was happier in his ground strokes than at the net, where Ravenhill exhibited several deft touches in volleying. Both, however, were inconsistent and because of this made things very much easier for the champions.

TSUI SHOWS HIS WARES

Tsui Wai-pui is going to be very difficult to beat this year. He played high-class tennis against A. E. P. Guest to beat the K.C.C. exponent in straight sets.

Guest tried hard to extend the rallies in the hope of forcing Tsui into blunders, but the champion was remarkably reliable and exploited so many different shots, varying pace, direction and length, in rapid exchange, that he was generally able to finish a rally at the point he desired.

He pummelled Guest's backhand until it broke down under the strain. At the net Tsui was flexible and tucked away Guest's best passing shots for outright aces. Altogether a delightful display of confidence and skill.

A. V. Remedios earned most of the honours when playing with A. V. Gosarno against P. K. Liang and H. N. Lee.

These four young players abandoned any subtleties and went in for honest, good-natured hitting, both pairs raiding the net simultaneously, so that spectators were treated to lively bouts of volleying. It was here that Remedios came after a tentative start, while Gosarno stood down considerably in the latter stages of the match and gave his companion splendid support.

The Portuguese couple were the steadier pair at close quarters and because of this won the match. Both Liang and Lee, although in turn executing admirable shots, were far too inconsistent to win a majority of points.

It was bright, virile tennis, which showed that at least the players were well endowed with strong wrists.

UNEXPECTED OPPOSITION

M. K. and M. W. Lo received unexpected opposition from J. G. Haigh and G. S. Gamble, and were hard put to win 28 games. The Lo brothers appeared to be somewhat out of practice. M. W. in particular committing unusual blunders at the net.

The winners' vast experience eventually pulled the game out of the fire for them.

The losers although well below the brothers in the matter of pure tennis called upon hidden reserves of stamina to force the first set to 6-7 and the second to 7-5. Both players were reasonably good off the ground, but were deficient in volleying and overhead.

Umpire Lee Wai-long had to decide on a question of tennis law during the match between Beach Thomas and Petch and Tennis Kwok and Luk Ding-cheung.

In his anxiety to make certain of a point, Kwok volleyed a ball before it had passed over the net, and Lee rightly gave the point against the Chinese pair, bringing section F of Rule 17 into effect. This states that a player loses a point if he volleys the ball before it has passed the net.

The score was deuce when this occurred and the Europeans went on to snatch a service game from Luk Ding-cheung to lead 3-1 in the first set. Thereafter the Chinese asserted themselves and won five games in a row to walk away with the set.

The play generally was mediocre. Petch and Beach Thomas were too unreliable to force the Chinese into anything but a very ordinary defensive type of game. Mistakes which should never have been committed lost them innumerable points. On the other hand the Chinese were solid in difficulties at the net and were fully capable of making winning shots.

PETERSEN TO VISIT U.S.A.On A Quest For Knowledge*TO BE TAUGHT IN-FIGHTING

London, Feb. 14. Jack Petersen is going to America—not in search of world honours, but on a quest for knowledge!

Neusel revealed "wide open spaces" in Petersen's defence, and proved that American methods of in-fighting were more effective than the Welshman's straight left and right cross.

Petersen senior now realises that his son has much to learn if he intends to rise in his profession. Jack is young enough to the sixth, and was three up again. A feature of this hole was the beautiful iron shots which both ladies played.

Hence the decision to make a trip to America. The British champion will be absent from the ring for some time, although his injured left eye is healing rapidly, and much may be learned during his brief sojourn in the States.

Pa Petersen plans to take Jack across the Atlantic in a week or two, and to spend a month at least in one of the well-known camps in America.

It is probable that Jack will make use of Madame Boy's gymnasium, outside New York, where Barney Ross, light-weight champion of the world, and other top-notchers train.

The British champion is to have the assistance of several in-fighting experts, and he will be under the supervision of an American trainer.

NEUSEL STILL TRAINING

In the meantime, Neusel is still in training at Windsor.

He has not forgotten his strenuous battle against an increasing wasteline, and he intends to keep superfluous flesh under control.

Paul Damski, Neusel's manager, is awaiting news from Madison Square Garden.

He has had an offer for Neusel to fight Carnara in New York on March 29, and this will be accepted if it carries a guarantee of a world title fight with Baer afterwards.

"The Garden have the idea of matching the winners of the Carnara-Neusel and Hamas-Schmeling fights in an eliminator before Baer comes into the question."

"I am not interested in that proposal," stated Damski.

GOLF CHAMPIONMRS. ROBERTSON WINS EVENT*NARROW VICTORY

The Royal Hongkong Golf Club's Ladies' Champion for 1935 is Mrs. K. S. Robertson. She beat Mme. Laffond last Saturday by two up and one to play, on the Old Course, Panning.

Mrs. Robertson won the first three holes. She had a perfect four at the first, Mme. Laffond missing her drive. Mme. Laffond missed her drive at the second, and Mrs. Robertson holed out in six after missing a short putt for a five. A perfect three at the third made her three up. Mme. Laffond won the fourth, where both had good drives, and the fifth was holed in five. Mrs. Robertson won the sixth, and was three up again.

A feature of this hole was the beautiful iron shots which both ladies played.

Mrs. Robertson played a very courageous spoon across the gully at the eleventh which unhappily finished in one of the branches, and her next shot was pulled over the side. The match was squared at the "Gem," where neither player was up. Mrs. Robertson taking four. Mrs. Robertson became one up again at the thirteenth. The next three holes were halved, the "Armchair" in five. Mrs. Robertson won the seventeenth and the match was over two and one. It was a keenly contested final, and the winner deserves hearty congratulations.

Captain's Cup

The Captain's Cup was won by Mrs. J. B. Ross, who beat Mrs. Whyte-Smith in the final two and one.

Railway Cup

In the final of the Railway Cup competition, Mrs. Williamson beat Mrs. Lissaman by three and two.

SERIAL STORY

SILKEN SPINDLES

by Laura Lee Brookman

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

GAIL HENDERSON, pretty, 21, works in a silk mill. She and her brother, PHIL, support their invalid father, STEVE MEYERS, who also works in the mill. Gail is to marry him. She promises to give him an answer in a few days. That night Gail is waiting for the river. The boat breaks and she is rescued by BRIAN WESTMORE, whose father, now dead, built the mill. Brian asks Gail to wait while he gets his car but when he returns she is gone.

VICTOR THATCHER, daughter of ROBERT THATCHER, general manager of the mill, makes plans to captivate Brian.

RUBY CHIFFIN, a girl with Phil Henderson to keep one with ED VOGEL, and Phil and Ed quarrel. Later Phil goes to mysterious meeting with other mill workers.

CHAPTER IX

The morning sunlight slanted through the tall, wide windows and fell in a bright path across the carpeted floor. It fell on the heavy, polished desk, striking the silver paper weight shaped like a sea gull, the leather calendar pad and the stack of opened letters addressed to Mr. Robert Thatcher, general manager of the mill.

Thatcher sat at the desk, very straight, the palms of his hands pressed together. When he spoke the words came crisply.

"My dear Brian," he was saying, "you know we're all glad to see you back. It's a fine thing—a son stepping into his father's shoes."

Brian Westmore said quickly, "I'm afraid it will be a long time before I can do that—if I ever can. Of course the whole thing is new to me; I've got so much to learn. But I'm anxious to get started—more anxious than I've ever been about anything before."

Thatcher nodded. "That's the spirit," he approved. "If more young men felt that way, if they would take an interest in business instead of frittering their time away on silly sports and such nonsense, this country would be a great deal better off. Yes, indeed! A great deal better off."

Brian leaned forward. "My mother told me," he said, "how wonderfully you've managed everything—keeping the employees on and paying them the same wages as the fact that the times are no bad. I want to know how you did it."

The older man raised a hand deprecatingly. "Just keeping my hand on the rudder, Brian. These last eight months have been trying ones. Here in our mill we've had our little troubles, but nothing more than that. Nothing to be alarmed about."

"In Paris," Brian said, "I read a lot about the new experiments—keeping the workers in the country. About the way they're talking things at Washington, trying to organize the country on a new economic basis, giving the workers a chance to stand on their own feet. I want to know how it's being done."

Thatcher's lips tightened. His voice neither rose nor lowered, but it took on a hardness as he interrupted:

"Yes, of course. It's all very interesting. Extremely so. I suppose I'm a conservative man, Brian. At least some people would call me so. But I've been trained in a hard school, frankly I must confess I'm sceptical about them. Not opposed, you understand, but sceptical! Until someone can show me a better way I prefer to go along as we have been here, meeting problems as they come along, working them out as I think, with a touch of pride, that results under my management have been fairly satisfactory."

"Oh, yes, Mr. Thatcher. That's what I've been telling you. Mother says you've done wonderfully."

"Ah!" Thatcher smiled. "Profits," he went on in the clear, hard tone, "have been gratifying. And we have no labour troubles. Our workers are like a peaceful, contented family. The spirit of the executives and the spirit of the men and women of the mill is one of friendly co-operation. You've seen the mill village, Brian?"

"Yes—that is, I've driven through it."

"Then you know how comfortably our workers live there. In modern homes, equipped with every convenience. They live the very best we can give them at the lowest price. Yes, I'm happy to say that in these times of unrest and dissatisfaction elsewhere—our employees are completely satisfied."

The young man said eagerly: "But that's because you're paying them honest wages for their work. What is the wage scale, Mr. Thatcher?"

"Well," the general manager moved restlessly. "Of course it varies. There are our highly skilled workers and those who have been with us for years; then there are those who are beginners. The government has set a minimum scale for the textile industry, as you perhaps know. I can say that all our employees are receiving an amount well above the minimum."

"You've cut working hours, yet you're keeping up salaries?"

"Why—yes, why?"

Brian smiled. "Mother told me that, but I was afraid to believe it. I thought she might have gotten things mixed up. Mother hasn't much head for business, that's why she is so grateful to you for all you've done. And I'm grateful, too, Mr. Thatcher."

"Only too glad to be of service, my boy. Only too glad!"

"I should have been here myself," Thatcher's narrow face began to tingle. "My father's death," he said pompously, "was unexpected. It was, of course, very sad, but you would be so far away from home. Your father was a splendid employer."

"The telephone rang several times during the next half hour, and Thatcher answered it. Once he pressed a bell and his secretary—a slim young woman with auburn cheeks—entered, carrying some papers which she placed before him, then withdrew.

At last Thatcher rose, crossed the room and opened the door on the right. "If you'd like to have a look around the mill," he said to Brian, "we might get started now."

Brian sat at the new desk, his arms folded. "Good," he said, getting to his feet. "I'm anxious to see the place!"

They stepped into the corridor, and the rumble of machines, muffled behind closed doors, came to them.

"We'll go down this way first," Thatcher said, moving ahead.

Brian followed. They passed down the hallway and turned a corner. Thatcher, glancing over his shoulder, said something but Brian did not hear the words. He was looking at a girl who was coming toward him—a girl in a blue apron-dress, a pretty girl with gray eyes beneath wide, dark brows. Brian recognized her instantly. She was the girl he had talked to at the river, the girl who had gone through the ice.

Brian sat at the new desk, his arms folded.

And a friend. Mr. sure he'd be very happy if he could see you to-day and know that you're going on with the business he established. I'm sure he'd be proud of you, Brian."

"Thank you. I'd like to think that."

The general manager sat back and rubbed his hands together. "And now about getting a place for you to work," he said. "I've had the office next door put into shape. It's quite pleasant, I think, but if there's anything at all you'd like changed, just say so. Shall we have a look at it?"

Brian was on his feet. Brian arose also. "I wasn't expecting an office," he said, hesitating. "Not now. Tell me what I'd thought, Mr. Thatcher. I'd like to begin in the mill, doing whatever you put new workers to do."

"I'd like to work in all the different departments and find out how the different jobs are done."

Thatcher's voice cut in sharply. "But this is the place to learn the business, Brian. I'll call in some of our experts this afternoon and they'll explain the processes to you. In a short time. No, I think it would be a great mistake for you to go into the mill. I'd be very much opposed to it."

"But why?"

"The workers wouldn't understand," Thatcher said. "You don't know how they feel about the Westmore name, about your father. You want their respect, don't you? Their confidence? Then you mustn't go out and try to be one of them. You couldn't anyhow, you know."

"Of course," Brian said slowly, "if you're sure that's the way it is."

"Certainly I'm sure," Thatcher smiled. "I've been in this mill 15 years, my boy. I ought to know something about it." He put a hand on Brian's shoulder. "We'll work together," he said. "You and I. You're going to be a great help to me."

"I hope I can be."

"Of course you can! Now then—shall we take a look at your office?"

Ten minutes later Robert Thatcher sat at his desk. The door, leading into the next office was closed; there was no one else in the room. The general manager reached for the telephone, but before he raised it his lips formed three words.

"Frying young pup!" he said.

Then he picked up the telephone, gave some instructions and waited. Presently there was a knock at the door.

"Come in," Thatcher called.

A heavily-built, red-faced man entered. "You wanted to see me, Mr. Thatcher?"

"Yes, Parsons."

The man crossed the room, halted before the general manager's desk.

"The young man is here," Thatcher said, with a nod toward the door on the right. "We've been having a talk. I want you to remember, Parsons, what I told you last week. If he wants to see reports, figures, anything—he's not to see them. He'll have only the statements I turn over to him. Understand? If he comes to you with questions, put him off, and tell him to know who he talks to when he's away from this office. If he seems to be getting friendly with any of the men I'd like to hear about it."

The red-faced man nodded. "Yes, Mr. Thatcher," he said unctuously. "That's all."

Thatcher picked up a letter and read it through. He did not look up as the door closed on the red-faced man.

The telephone rang several times during the next half hour, and Thatcher answered it. Once he pressed a bell and his secretary—a slim young woman with auburn cheeks—entered, carrying some papers which she placed before him, then withdrew.

At last Thatcher rose, crossed the room and opened the door on the right. "If you'd like to have a look around the mill," he said to Brian, "we might get started now."

"The Line-Up"

Opening to-day at the Queen's Theatre, "The Line-Up," a Columbia production, depicts in fascinating detail the inner workings of a powerful group of racketeers who eventually end in the police line-up, from which the motion picture derives its title.

Coupled with this dramatic expose is the romantic love story of the young detective and the girl he is forced to subject to the humiliation and disgrace of the line-up. William Gargan is cast as the embryo detective, Marion Nixon is co-featured as the attractive check-room attendant accused of theft who falls in love with Gargan.

John Miljan is cast as usual, as the villain, but his role of the suave proprietor of a "hot" fur shop is unlike any part he has ever played. Noel Francis, a rising blonde actress, is featured as his assistant, while Harold Huber another recruit from the New York stage, is the gangster accomplice. Others in the cast are Greta Meyer and Paul Hurst. Howard Higgin directed.

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

Striking straight to the heart with its sincerity, its human qualities, and its poignant drama, "The Life of Vergie Winters" takes its place as one of the noteworthy screen achievements of the year. Not only does this RKO Radio Picture, now at the King's Theatre, provide Ann Harding with a distinctive and powerful role, but it also tells a story that must rank as one of the really beautiful romances of all time. In her characterization of the suffering small town milliner, Vergie Winters, Miss Harding reveals superb artistry. John Boles, too, has perhaps the best role of his screen career, and the combination of his talents with those of Miss Harding is exceptionally effective. A speaking cast which for numbers is almost a motion picture record, does brilliantly in support of the central characters, noteworthy being the performances of Helen Vason and Betty Burness. The return of Molly O'Day and Wesley Barry to the screen also is of particular interest.

"Biography of a Bachelor Girl"

Film entertainment of exceptional merit is in store for local moviegoers with the coming on Sunday to the Queen's Theatre of "Biography of a Bachelor Girl." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's adaptation of the Theatre Guild success, "Biography," which enjoyed a long run on Broadway with Ina Claire in the starring role. The photoplay brings together for the second time Ann Harding and Robert Montgomery whose joint performance in "When Ladies Meet" made that one of the most delightful of last season's pictures. The distinctive supporting cast features Edward Everett Horton in the role of a pompous, big-wig politician, "a backwoods state" Edward Arnold, whose performance in "When Ladies Meet" made that one of the most delightful of last season's pictures. The red-faced man nodded. "Yes, Mr. Thatcher," he said unctuously. "That's all."

Thatcher picked up a letter and read it through. He did not look up as the door closed on the red-faced man.

The telephone rang several times during the next half hour, and Thatcher answered it. Once he pressed a bell and his secretary—a slim young woman with auburn cheeks—entered, carrying some papers which she placed before him, then withdrew.

At last Thatcher rose, crossed the room and opened the door on the right. "If you'd like to have a look around the mill," he said to Brian, "we might get started now."

Brian sat at the new desk, his arms folded. "Good," he said, getting to his feet. "I'm anxious to see the place!"

They stepped into the corridor, and the rumble of machines, muffled behind closed doors, came to them.

"We'll go down this way first," Thatcher said, moving ahead.

Brian followed. They passed down the hallway and turned a corner. Thatcher, glancing over his shoulder, said something but Brian did not hear the words. He was looking at a girl who was coming toward him—a girl in a blue apron-dress, a pretty girl with gray eyes beneath wide, dark brows. Brian recognized her instantly. She was the girl he had talked to at the river, the girl who had gone through the ice.

PACIFIC AIRWAY

CHINESE FEEDER SERVICE TO MANILA

Manila, Mar. 6.
The chief barrier to the extension of the proposed trans-Pacific air service to China has now been removed, according to General Liu Pao-chuan, Managing Director of the South-west Aviation Corporation.

General Liu to-day told United Press that the China National Aviation Corporation had reached an agreement with the Pan-American Airways Corporation for operating the Canton-Manila section of the proposed trans-Pacific service.

By means of this agreement, the objections of the Chinese Government to the extension of the service have been removed, as the China National Aviation Corporation already operates over Chinese territory.

China objected to Pan-American Airways extending its service to Chinese territory, on the grounds that other nations would have a precedent for requesting similar concessions.

An experimental flight from San Francisco to Manila will be made within the next six weeks, and will be followed by a direct service with 72-passenger Sikorsky "Clippers."

Under the new arrangement smaller flying boats will provide a feeder service between Manila and China, via Canton.—United Press.

KING'S JUBILEE

LAVISH PREPARATIONS BY COMMERCIAL HONGS

Enthusiastic response from Chinese hongs gives further assurance that the local celebration of the King's Jubilee will be a success on May 6.

Chinese members of the King's Jubilee Celebration Committee have held a meeting with the representatives of the various hongs at which decision was reached that there should be a pageant float, including one at the Central Market and another on the Wanchai reclamation.

Apart from these electrically illuminated pageant floats with their accompanying Chinese musical shows, four Chinese hongs have promised to present a fire dragon each, which will be lavishly prepared to add to the general gaiety of the occasion.

The dragon displays will be undertaken by the Poultry Dealers' Association, the Fish Mongers' Association, and the Butchers' Association.

The Cargo Coolies' (Tung Tak) Union will enlist the services of what dragon boats are now available in Hongkong and of sampans to enliven the celebration in the Harbour. The floats at sea promise to present a novelty.

The Lion Display, generally seen during Chinese New Year festivities, will be presented on a bigger scale.

With a donation of $500 from the Chinese Seamen's Union, and other donations of $300 or less from each hong, the day and night processions of tableaux and accoutrements both on land and in the harbour promise to be a unique feature of the celebration. The fish lantern display at night will add more colour.

At the monthly meeting of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon it was stated that the Chamber's building in Connaught Road Central will be belaguered and electrically illuminated. Other details will be worked out later by the Committee.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY

CHINESE COMMITTED TO THE CRIMINAL SESSIONS

Yu Chung, unemployed, aged 23 years, was committed to stand his trial at the next Criminal Sessions by Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon, on a charge of highway robbery at Island Road, on Saturday last.

The defendant was alleged to have received $5 from Kwok Mul, married woman, and to have used personal violence.

Allegations that the defendant had squeezed her neck and had thrown her to the ground were made by the complainant in the course of her evidence.

Opening the case, Inspector S. Logan said that on Saturday about 2.30 p.m., the complainant was returning to Tylam from Shaokwan along Island Road. When she came to the bend of the road near Fung Mun Au, she saw the defendant sitting by the side of the road.

She passed him, and on turning round saw him behind her. He got ahead of her, and then turned round. Coming up to her he caught her by her neck and threw her to the ground. He then took the money, which was wrapped up in a handkerchief, from her jacket pocket. The complainant attempted to shout out, but the defendant squeezed her neck.

He then let her go, and she ran towards Shaokwan. She met some fishermen who accompanied her to Fung Mun Au, where she got help from a P.W.D. Foreman, Lau Yung, who took her back to the scene in his truck. On the way she saw the defendant walking on the road, and shouted out. The defendant ran down the hillside, and the foreman on failing to find him, returned to Fung Mun Au and enlisted about forty of his men, whom he turned loose on the hillside.

The defendant was eventually found by one of the coolies. The complainant was a provision carrier in the employ of Mr. Rose, of the P. W. D., and used to carry provisions for him from Shaokwan to Tylam.

Evidence was taken, after which the defendant was committed.

VARIED THEMES

London, Feb. 12.
Last week came the London
presentation at the Tivoli, following the Paris premiere ten days ago, of the Toppitz film, "The Dictator". Anticipation had run
high over this picture of Eight-
teenth Century Copenhagen. In
the first place, it was known to
have cost over £100,000 to make.
In the second place, it took a pro-
digious long time in the making.
In the third place, it boasted a
staff of technical experts gathered
from all parts of the world, and
the celebrated Mr. Clive Brook was repatriated from Hollywood to play the title role opposite Miss Madeleine Carroll. In the fourth
place, Victor Saville, borrowed
from Gaumont British, directed,
taking over in the early stages
from the American, Al Santell.
And in the fifth place, it marked
the maiden effort in solo production in this country of Signor Toppitz de Grand Ry, formerly joint managing director of London Films.

"The Dictator" is the sad little
story of an ambitious but public-spirited Hanburg doctor, by name
of Struensee, who becomes en-
amoured of the young Queen of Denmark, Caroline Matilda.
After having cured the King of
Denmark of his colds, and freed
the people from the salt tax, the
bread tax and sundry other disabilities, he arrives eventually on
the scaffold, where he dies, we
presume, like a gentleman and a Hamburgher. Signor Toppitz is certainly an inspired investor of
money. He puts all his cash on a film, not in it. Every scene
gleams and glows, the stars flash
jewels, the marble staircase of the Danish palace is, and looks like,
the biggest set ever erected in a British studio. "The Dictator" is
in short an opulent picture, in full
court dress with decorations.
But it is rather dull, and just

The other films of the week include "Evelyn Prentice" at the Empire. After their successful
team-work as husband and wife in
"The Thin Man" it was inevitable
that William Powell and Myrna
Loy should shortly appear again
in the same conjugal relationship.
This time they play their parts in
a rather solemn Court room story,
and a little child has been added
unto them to help over the more
emotional scenes. Except for one
first-rate dramatic sequence, with Isabel Jewell as the murdered
man's mistress, on the witness
stand, the film is played very
quietly, very nonchalantly, and
the lines "thrown away" with an
air of intense culture and breeding.

"The Gilded Lily" at the Plaza
is a tale of newspaper "bullyhoos"
in which a New York stenographer
is built up to international celebrity through having supposedly
refused the hand of an English
lord. It is pretty thin stuff,
written, shot, and generally played to formula, but the star, Clau-
dette Colbert, seems to improve
with every film she tackles and
whenever the script gives her the
opportunity she comes through
with a neat handful of laughs.

"Dangerous Corner" at the
Plaza is an adaptation of the Priestley play and is one of the
more intelligent contributions to
the screen, but not always the
most intelligible.

"Happiness Ahead" at the Regal
is the idyll of a poor little rich
girl and a nice, kind, musical
window-cleaner with the heart of
a gentleman. Our old friend,
Dick Powell, the crooner, is the
window-cleaner, but Josephine Hutchinson, the Gaynor-like new-
comer who plays the part of the
poor little rich girl, is what is
known as "a real actress" mean-

POTATO AND TOMATO SAVOURY

Cut one lb. of boiled potatoes
into slices, and season them
with pepper and salt. Open a tin of
tomatoes, and pour away most of
the liquor. Beat the tomatoes
smoothly with a fork. Melt ½ oz.
butter in a sauce-pan, and stir into
it ½ oz. flour.

Cook for three minutes, stirring
all the time; then add gradually ¼ pint of milk, still stirring, and
mixing smoothly. Add a pinch of salt, and continue stirring over
gentle heat until the sauce has
boiled for eight minutes. Add this sauce to the tomato purée, and heat
them together over the fire.

Now grease a pie-dish, and put
a layer of sliced tomatoes at the
bottom, sprinkle with grated
cheese, and pour over some of the tomato. Repeat these layers—
potatoes, cheese, tomato, and so on,
until the ingredients are used up,
the last layer being of tomato.

a few bits of butter on top, and

legitimate stage.
The clever cartoon fantasy
"Jole de Vivre" by Anthony Cross
and Hector Hoppen makes a timely
reappearance, to coincide with the
Disney exhibition at the Leicester
Galleries. A comparison between
the two styles of draughtsmanship
is interesting, and should provide
an ample thesis for the academically inclined.

CHORUS GIRLS' "LIFE"

One year is the average screen
life of a Hollywood chorus girl.
More than 50,000 chorus girls
have applied at the studios during
the five years of screen musicals,
but only 2,000, at the most, have
found jobs.

While the hope for stardom is
the bait that lures them there, not
more than a dozen girls have
graduated from the chorus to
permanent acting contracts.
The figures are the compilation
of Dave Gould, a Hollywood dance
director.

ACCIDENTS IN POTHOLES

RESCUE CORPS IN YORKSHIRE

Skipton.
A voluntary rescue corps to deal
with accidents in the caves and
potholes of north-west Yorkshire
has been formed. The corps is representative of all the potholing
clubs in the North of England, and
its members have an extensive
knowledge of the difficulties likely to be met with in this class of rescue work.

The corps was officially formed
at a meeting at Settle on Saturday, under the chairmanship of
Mr. E. E. Roberts, of Leeds, and
Yorkshire Ramblers' Club, the Craven Pothole Club, Skipton, the Northern Cavern and Fell Club,
whose members are chiefly recruited from Lancashire, the Crisstone
Club, the Leeds Cave Club, the Moar and Fell Club, York, and Giggleswick School, whose boys do
a certain amount of potholing.

The descent of potholes and
caves in the great depths of the
limestone which lies beneath the Craven fells has for many years
been the pastime of the few, but
the adventure afforded is now attracting many others, and to the
uninitiated dangers are to be encountered which might result in serious accidents. Potholers are becoming alarmed at the casual-
ness with which cyclists and
ramblers venture the descent of a
cave or pothole without having the
necessary equipment and experience to enable them to overcome
the difficulties they will meet. The removal of an injured man from
the underground caverns is a difficult undertaking, as there are
narrow and tortuous passages
through which only a slim person
can crawl, and pitches which even
in daylight would be regarded as
a severe test for the rock-climber.

The rescue corps which has been
formed will, it has been decided,
render assistance to an injured
man whether or not he is a member
of a club. The cost of the necessary equipment is being borne by
the clubs, and arrangements have
been made to enable the corps to
receive prompt information of an accident. The corps is to cooperate with landowners, hotel and
boarding-house keepers, and the
police stations in "pothole land,"
which stretches from Kirkby Lonsdale to the head of Niddale.
The chief potholing area, however,
is that bounded by the three Yorkshire peaks, Wharfedale, Ingleborough, and Penngent, and in case of accident in this area notification will be given to four rescue
wards.

girls who have gone from the
screen chorus to prominence in the
acting ranks. They are Marion Marah, Virginia Bruce, Betty
Grable, Jean Howard, Toby Wing,
Ruth Hall, Barbara Weeks, and Paulette Goddard. Only the two first mentioned have attained any outstanding degree of success,
while Paulette Goddard has yet
to prove herself under Charlie
Chaplin's sponsorship.
Gould, of course, is not including the girls who go to Hollywood
from the Broadway chorus with
film contracts. The number of these who have made good is much larger.

KIPLING TALES TO BE FILMED

A party have arrived in Bom-
bay to film Rudyard Kipling's
"Soldiers Three" for Gaumont-
British. The scenario is stated to have been approved by Mr. Kip-
ling.

Some 80 tons of equipment have already arrived. This includes
military uniforms and rifles of the 19th century, sufficient for a whole battalion. "Shots" will be made of Bombay and up-country
life and along the frontier. A battle scene between frontier
tribes will be enacted, and for this thousands of "extras" will be engaged.

Mr. S. Bonnett, the cameraman
who was attached to the Everest
expedition, will take the scenes.

Thousands gathered outside the Church of the Gesù in Rome to see Prince Alessandro Torlonia and his bride, the Infanta Beatriz, daughter of Spain's ex-King. A fleeting glimpse of the couple rewarded them when, as pictured above, they left the church after the wedding ceremony that was attended by royalty from all of Europe.

Preparations for the celebrations throughout the Empire of H. M. the King's Silver Jubilee are being made even at this early date. Here, for instance, is shown the three-handled loving cup, one of thousands of mugs and beakers for a jubilee showing. This particular cup is a first prize winner and will be presented to Her Majesty the Queen. It was made at Stoke-on-Trent.

UNDESIRABLE CLUBS

"GRAVE SOCIAL QUESTION"

The existence of undesirable clubs in London was referred to as a grave social question by Mr. Douglas Gordon, chairman of the licensing justices for St. James's Division, at the general annual licensing meeting of the justices at the Vestry Hall, Dean Street, Soho, recently. He suggested that immediate steps should be taken to control clubs so that only those that were properly conducted should remain on the register.

It was reported by the clerk to the justices that during the past year there had been no convictions or complaints against licence holders in the division.

The Chairman said that the fact that there had been no complaints would seem to imply that the position, so far as the consumption of alcoholic liquor was concerned, was very satisfactory. Indeed, so far as the licensed premises were concerned, it was perfectly satisfactory. Licence holders, the police, and the Bench co-operated to bring about a state of things on licensed premises on which they could all congratulate themselves. But the Bench was face to face with a very grave social question over and above licences. That was the question of undesirable clubs.

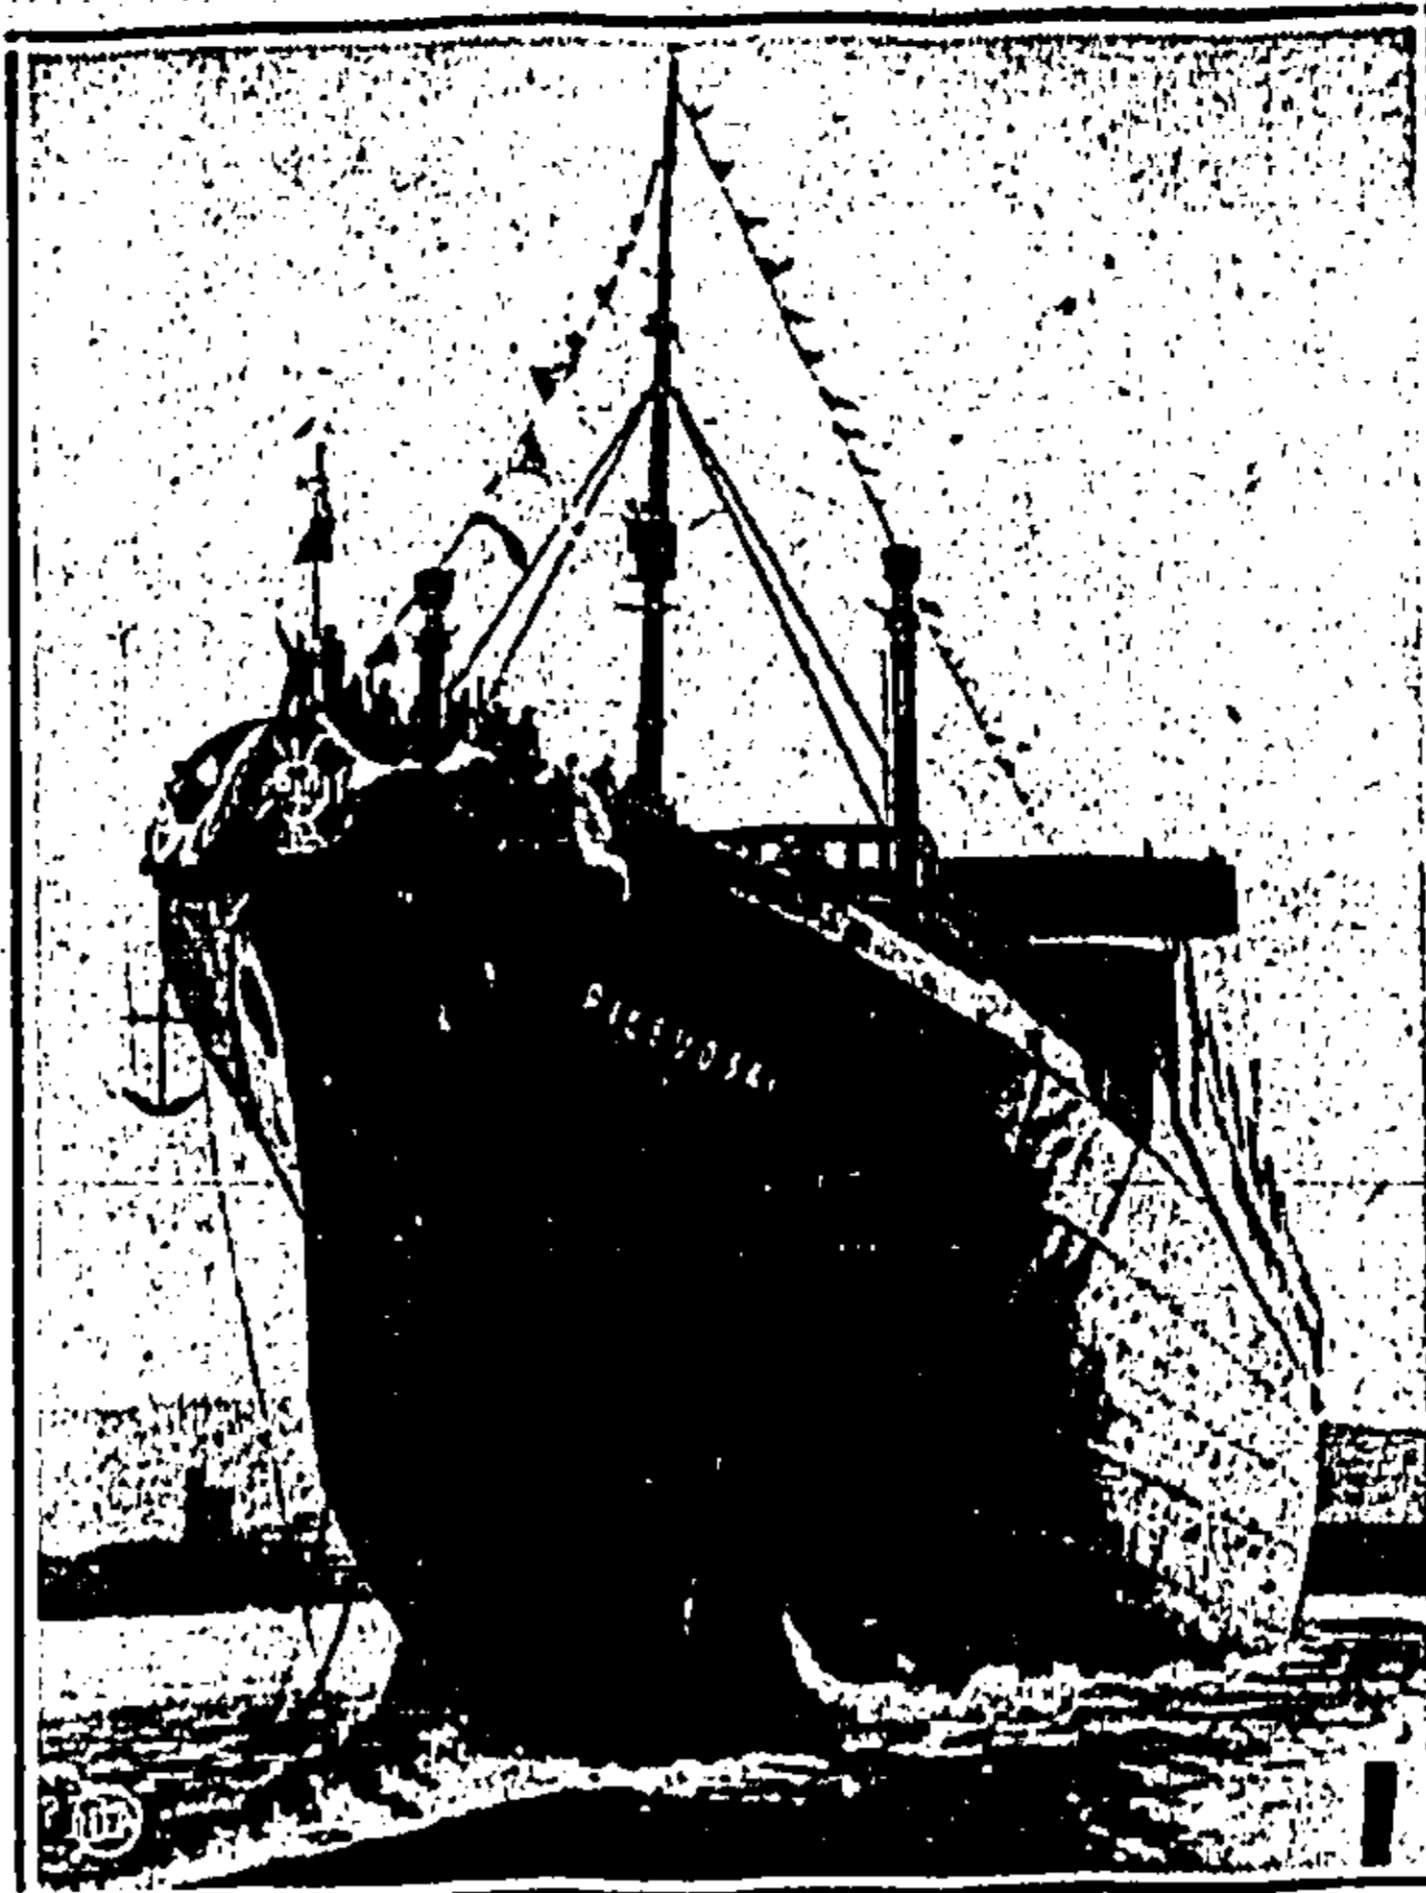

A very large number of clubs existed in that division. According to the police returns the number at December 31 was 193. There were clubs such as the Carlton and the Reform which were household words, and there was quite a number of clubs in the division which existed for those employed in theatres and elsewhere. Those were quite well conducted and with them they had every sympathy. But, over and above that, there was a very large number of clubs of a very undesirable character.

"UNTRAMMELED"

"I went into this matter, first of all some months ago," said the Chairman, "and the more I collected details the more lurid did the picture become with regard to these clubs. The sale of drink is practically untrammelled by any restriction, for many of them are practically proprietary clubs where the drink is not the property of the members, and, in many cases, they are centres of social disorder. I need not tell you that the facts are that any person can go to a police station, pay a fee of 6s., submit a short list of names, and found a club. In this division that power is taken advantage of by convicted criminals and other undesirable people."

"Our interest in the matter comes in in this way. We are responsible, with the assistance of the licence holders and the police, for the control of the sale of drink in this division. All our efforts are frustrated by the existence of 'unlicensed publichouses.' It is most unfair to the licence holders. There is another point to which I personally attach considerable importance, and that is that the odium of intemperance in any particular part of London is always put down to licensed houses. As a matter of fact, in many divisions, and more particularly in this division, it is due to these clubs of an undesirable nature."

"We are unanimous—every member of the Bench present is agreed that it is most urgent that steps should be taken to alter this state of things. We want to take advantage of this opportunity to say publicly that in our opinion it is imperative that steps should be taken for the control of existing clubs in such a manner that only those that afford some reasonable comfort for members and are properly conducted should remain on the register.

"We think that some administrative measure should be taken with regard to the foundations of new clubs; that inquiry should be made, and that only persons of reputable character should be able to start a club. We understand that there are objections raised by some clubs to a system of inspection and supervision. We cannot understand why this should be so. We should have thought that every club which was properly conducted would welcome supervision as eliminating them from the class of doubtful clubs. It is not for us to say what steps ought to be taken, but we feel very strongly that the present position of things in this division is a grave scandal, and that it minimizes the efforts which are made to bring the sale of drink within proper limits. We want to bring forward our strong opinion that steps should be taken immediately to control and restrict the sale of drink in bogus clubs, and at the same time suppress grave social disorders brought about by their existence."

The remarks of the chairman were applauded by those present.

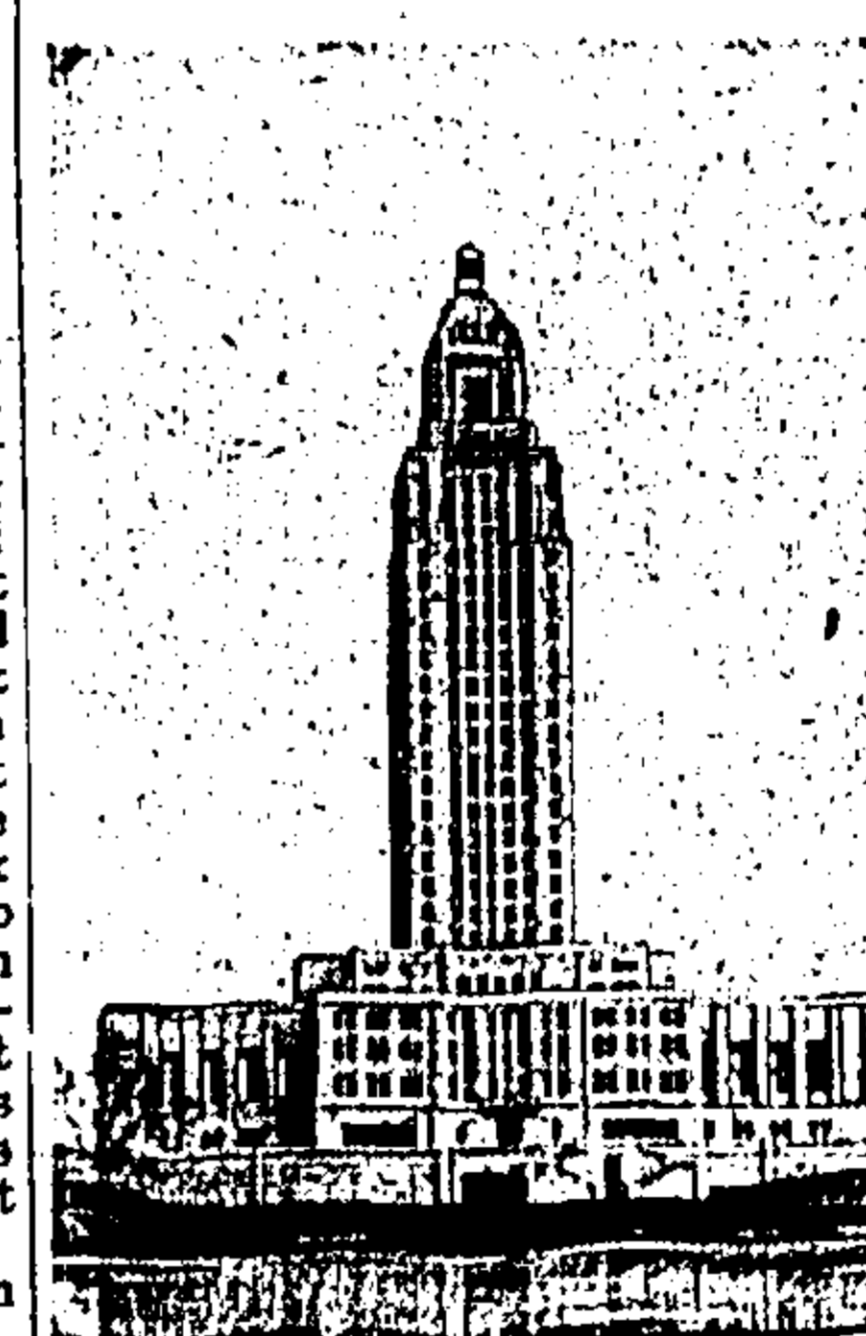

Six applications by social clubs for upper licence certificates under section 3 (2) of the Licensing Act, 1921, were dealt with, and, of these, four were granted and two refused. A number of term licences in respect of restaurants were registered. Full licences were granted to the Arston Cafe, Argyll Street, and the Restaurant D'Italie, Greek Street and Church Street. With regard to the latter, it was stated that D'Italie had been known in Soho for over 80 years, although not continuously on the same premises. Formerly, there had been a full licence, but in recent years the licence had been confined to beer and wine. Two new off-licences were granted. An application for the transfer of the licence in respect of the Lord Bel-

SHAI MARKET REPORT

CONFUSED OPENING ON EXCHANGE

Shanghai, Mar. 7.
There was a very confused opening of the Foreign Exchange Market here this morning. Rates are very uncertain, but the undertone is firm. Most traders appear inclined to hold aloof until the attitude of the Manufacturers Banks is disclosed. The market is firm here at 10.45 a.m. It is reported that the Manufacturers Bank are selling exchange. The market was easier at the close of the morning session. This was due to the Central Bank buying exchange heavily, the morning's purchases being estimated in excess of U.S.$3,000,000. The operations were cleverly marked by the Manufacturers Bank selling on a much smaller scale.—United Press.

Mukden, March 7.
Chinese, as well as other non-Japanese goods, are suffering more keen competition with Japanese goods than ever before. The Japanese products are dumped on the Manchurian market at absurd prices. In consequence of the dominance of Japanese trade interests, almost two thousand Chinese firms in the leading cities in Manchuria, such as Mukden, Kirin, Changchun and Harbin, are reported to have been compelled to close down in the past few months, and even a number of leading European firms have shared the same fate, as they lack all advantages, which are possessed by Japanese traders.—Central News.

EXPANDING FAR EAST TRADE

U.S. MISSION LEAVES SOON FOR CHINA

San Francisco, March 6.
Mr. W. Cameron Forbes, American economist and banker, Honorary President of the China Association of America, arrived here today, preparatory to heading a trade commission to the Orient on March 22. Mr. Forbes, who has had considerable commercial experience in the East, has expressed the conviction that opportunities still exist for the expansion of trade in the Orient, despite the fluctuations in exchange.—United Press.

COMMUNISTS EXECUTED

Amoy, Mar. 6.
So Kuo-hai and Liang Su-yen, two important Communist leaders, recently sentenced to death, were executed early this morning at the Amoy Police Headquarters.—Central News.

SIAM CONTINUES UNDISTURBED

ARMY IN COMPLETE CONTROL

Bangkok, March 7.
Following an attempt to assassinate the Minister of Defence, which failed, the situation in Siam is generally quiet. The Government has suppressed the news of the abdication of the King, and the future monarch's identity is unknown. The Army holds power, and controls all the Ministries. The oath of allegiance to the King will, in future, be omitted, according to report.—United Press.

ANTI-RED WAR IN HUNAN

HO CHIEN PREPARES FOR OFFENSIVE

Changsha, March 7.
The Hunan Government is resuming a vigorous campaign against the Red remnants in Western Hunan. General Ho Chien, Military Governor of Hunan, is proceeding to Shuentshan, where he has established his anti-Red headquarters, to direct the operations. A strong detachment of Hunan Provincial Government troops is advancing to Le-tung from Shenchow to intercept the Reds, who are attempting to effect a conjunction with other groups of marauders.—Central News.

MURDER CHARGE DROPPED

NINE MEN FORMALLY DISCHARGED

The case in which nine Chinese were charged with having murdered a man named Wang Fuk at 103 Chan Lu Wu village, on February 13 last, came to an abrupt end at the Central Magistracy before Mr. Wynne-Jones this morning when Detective Inspector A. H. Eleton told the Court that the police had no evidence to offer. Mr. Leo d'Almeida, Sr., who represented all the defendants, formally applied to his Worship to discharge them. His Worship accordingly discharged the defendants.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET DOWNWARD YESTERDAY

New York, Mar. 6.
The following reports on the New York stock market have been received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson & Fritz: The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's markets: Stocks declined to new low ground, due to the statement of the White House Attache who emphasized that there was nothing in what President Roosevelt had said at the Press Conference which could be construed as the slightest intention of further devaluation.

There was an early spurt immediately following the Press Conference, owing to some traders on Wall Street having interpreted the President's remarks as indicative of possible further devaluation, upon which mining issues soared, with others following, and aided by short-covering and also by the sharp break in the dollar. Grains jumped.

Government bonds broke, which disconcerted the Treasury, owing to their funding operations. The latter is believed to have caused President Roosevelt to instruct his Attache to clarify his remarks, emphasizing that any inference looking to contemplated further devaluation is absolutely untrue, as which statement the markets reversed. Stocks crashed, while Government bonds rallied, and the dollar firmed up. The grain market declined.

S.C. and F. New York office cable:—The late reaction in the Commodity markets is due to Washington reports denying any inflationary intent attributed to a previous report. The action of the markets is evidence of intent buying power awaiting an incentive.

A definite move is seemingly about to be made to link up Hongkong with the Imperial Airways services to Britain and Australia. The British Air Estimates, of which details have just been issued, make provision for an experimental service between Bangkok and Hongkong, part of the arrangement on its financial side being that this Colony should contribute a substantial proportion of the cost. This contribution will evidently be by way of a subsidy, in which connection it is known that the Hongkong Government is ready to provide $300,000 for such a purpose, once a practical scheme is evolved. The authorities here have for some considerable time past been pressing the Imperial Government to take the necessary steps to link Hongkong with the Imperial Airways service, and the fact that financial provision is now being made provides evidence that the Home authorities are no less anxious to see the project become a reality. Some eighteen months ago, Imperial Airways intimated that it would be necessary, by whatever means the service was established, for Hongkong to make a definite contribution, in addition to receiving from the Post Office an undertaking to hand its mails exclusively to any British service that might be started. A regular weekly service was then envisaged, and it was expected that the Hongkong-London route could be covered in ten or eleven days, this being later reduced to eight or nine days after the introduction of night-flying on part of the route. The scheme now contemplated doubtless follows these main lines. No difficulties are expected in securing flying rights over Siam or Indo-China, but so far the negotiations for securing such rights over Chinese territory have not resulted in an agreement. However, there is no absolute necessity to fly over Chinese soil, as the sea route can be followed from Indo-China. At the same time, it would obviously be to the benefit of China to be able to extend her services to Hongkong, in return for a concession enabling British planes to fly over Chinese territory to the south of this Colony. There would, indeed, be mutual advantages about such an arrangement, and it is sincerely to be hoped that an understanding will soon be reached covering these two points.

NOTES OF THE DAY

JAPAN'S FEARS

The statement of a spokesman of the Tokyo Foreign Office yesterday that Japan did not approve of a plan for the international assistance of China because she was afraid that it might lead to eventual international control of China, may amuse some people. How much less there is to fear from international influence in Nanking than from domination by some single power! It surely must have occurred to the Japanese spokesman that observers would seize upon this attitude to use in argument against unilateral action of any sort, in China. If Japan has reason to fear international influence upon the Nanking Government, it is surely reasonable to suppose that other nations would fear the consequences of Japan dictation. The Nine Power Treaty was designed for the protection of China against aggression from any belligerent nation. No signatory of this treaty has shown the least desire to interfere in China's affairs, except Japan; and she has interfered in a very effectual manner, simply seizing control of an immense expanse of Chinese territory. We are not prepared to agree with Japan that this sort of policy does China any good. It seems that the purpose of Great Britain and America, apart from their natural desire to protect their own interests in the Far East, is to protect China. An economically sound nation friendly to them, is the aim of Western Powers; and to attain this object international co-operation is necessary. Those nations will serve themselves best who make the welfare of China their first consideration. For the moment they should not need to be particularly concerned with Japan, her motives, her ambitions or her delicate susceptibilities. China requires assistance; Britain and the United States, of their own accord, in all probability, are willing to assist her. If Japan wants to join them and do something for China, she would appear to be at liberty to do so. If she objects to an international loan it would be interesting to know how she proposes to prevent it.

UNITY IS STRENGTH

Great Britain was, and still is, in danger. The question in the stupendous crisis of 1931 was, how it was to be saved from the immediate peril of financial chaos and disaster. The peril was averted in the nick of time, but it is not to be supposed that such a crisis can be cleared in a single bound. That is not the way of economic crisis. Recovery comes only by slow and painful degrees, and the whole strength and wisdom of the nation must be bent to that purpose. At such a time it does not do to cling to partisan politics. Names must be forgotten and facts must be faced. This was the burden of the message which Mr. Ramsay MacDonald sent to the conference of student Unionists, held in Edinburgh recently. The difficulties of the times, he said, make integration and concentration essential to every people. In proof of this, we have only to look around upon the state of the world. All countries are making a desperate effort, and it would be vain for us to attempt to compete against them while we remained unorganised for the general contest. We must make use of "all that is still vital in the different traditions of political thought—Conservative, Liberal, and Labour. We dare not neglect any weapon which is still effective." This country, like others, saw the need for united action in the greatest crisis of all, the World War. Yet that was a simple issue in comparison with that in which the nations are still involved. An artificial stimulus kept the nations at the height of endeavour. That stimulus has been removed, and now all that can be depended upon is the intelligence, determination, and perseverance of the people, which will keep them alive to the seriousness of the position and help them to recognise wise Governmental action when they see it. And the first essential of action is unity, not only of parties but of national ideals.

AN UNSAFE JOB

There is a non-commissioned army officer in Cuba who seems to have about as strange and risky a job as any soldier could dream of. This man, Sergt. Jose Trabanca, is one they call on when a bomb is found about the streets. On such occasions he hurries to the spot, picks up the bomb, carries it to the harbour and tosses it into the sea. Considering the fact that bombs are fairly ticklish things to handle, Sergeant Trabanca has a job which few people will envy him. During the last year he has been called on to take no fewer than 958 bombs to a place of safety. And that total, incidentally, gives a bright little sidelight on the state of public unrest in Cuba. The troubled republic must be producing malcontents at a record pace. If bombs are being strewn about the streets at that rate.

"TICKING OFF" TOWN DWELLERS

By HENRY GOUDE
HORTICULTURAL SUPERINTENDENT,
NORFOLK COUNTY COUNCIL.

THE condition of England's farm lands is the concern of every thinking individual, as the future of the nation is dependent on the full use and productive power of England's soil.

History proves that unless a nation keeps its roots in the soil that nation decays and eventually becomes a byword among the nations of the earth. I believe that the neglect of land development is not wilful but is almost entirely due to misunderstandings.

I think it is high time that, in his own interests, the town dweller should drop his attitude of indifference to the problems of the countryside. One thing clear is that the countryman does not intend to take a back seat in relation to the townsman in a matter in which both are vitally concerned.

The large proportion of the population brought up in towns only considers farming from the point of view of the cost of its food supply. This viewpoint is, of course, most important, and it also decides Government action is dealing with agricultural problems.

In order to keep prices down, agriculture is to-day a heavily subsidised industry. We in the country are forced to use this help to the fullest possible extent in order to carry on, but in our inner hearts we would prefer a straight, clear market for our produce that would leave a profit on production. By reducing the exorbitant costs of distribution this could be attained without raising costs to the consumer. Our farmers are the best in the world, and only ask for fair and just treatment.

In an industrial country like England there is always the clashing of town and country interests. The industrial areas consider only their own problems, which are mainly concerned with the manufacture of goods and the sale of them at a profit. The farmer's problems are analogous. He also must produce and sell at a profit; but, except for the directly and indirectly subsidised crops, his market is glutted with foreign goods produced under conditions of labour that are impossible in England.

If our markets were flooded with manufactured goods produced under similar conditions, the upsurge would be immediate in all the affected districts, and the threat to livelihoods would be checked by emergency Acts of Parliament. That is actually the difference between town and country—the trenchant clamour of the towns and the isolated and feeble cries of the country interests.

Taking the long view, we in the country believe that the interests of towns and the countryside are mutual and identical, and this conclusion is supported by scientific opinion. Unless there is the virile country-bred stock to draw upon and replenish the worn-out human debris of manufacturing activity, the health and wealth of the towns will eventually disappear. Take stock of any crowd of people in any industrial town to-day—there is no need to delve into medical statistics the degeneration is only too obvious.

The countryside does not consider the health viewpoint of agriculture, but we do ponder over the problem of how the countryside can be made prosperous. The trend of national policy and lost international trade will, we think, eventually link the two more closely together.

We do definitely state that agriculture can be lifted out of the slough of depression as soon as the nation is prepared to act. Such a step would practically solve the unemployment problem. The simplest of several methods to achieve this desirable end is to grow all the dairy produce needed by the nation and give the home-grown article a preference over any imported dairy produce.

This measure could be enacted without any serious loss to our foreign trade. In some years a country such as Denmark has taken manufactured goods from us to the value of £7,000,000. She has drawn from us in the same year about £80,000,000 for dairy produce, all of which English soil could have yielded.

With that large sum irrigating our agriculture, a firm home market could be established that would more than compensate for any loss in our exports. By a further revision of our international trading agreements we could give our agriculture about £100,000,000 of additional business annually and encourage a healthy root action in the great basic industry of the race.

I have not the slightest doubt that we could produce all the necessary food required. England to-day is cultivated only in spots. We could increase our production a hundredfold by cultivating the uncultivated and semi-cultivated land. The farmers and market gardeners of England are eagerly awaiting the opportunity of increasing their responsibilities and the nation's food supplies. With a stable economic national policy, top-gear results would be achieved in a very short period.

It should be remembered that English-grown food is the natural food of English people. The Roman advice was to drink the wine of the country—in other words, to live on the products of their home localities. Roman writers stated that the ancient Britons did not begin to grow old until they reached the age of 70. They lived on the food they grew themselves, and we have many men in Norfolk over 70 still in the prime of vigorous life, due to the same basic fact.

It will be argued that we cannot grow the cheap wheat of the Argentine and Canada. America, at one period, ruined the wheat-producing countries of Europe. It is not a question of cost, but of how long we can afford to impoverish our land and buy foods that we can produce ourselves.

Life on the land is the ideal life. Deep in the hearts of all of us there is the desire to return to our native element. Why not turn this desire into a natural channel and revivify the pride and joy of the race in the farm lands of England? There is the residue of England's health and strength, and there also is the only foundation for rebuilding the nation's prosperity.

The Very Idea!

By Prof. Horatio Bogg, M.Sc.

A rumour has spread that the Chinese language is not what has been said of it—that it needs rescuing from a mass of split infinitives and verbs ending with a preposition.

Touched by the pathetic appeals of numerous would-be learners of Chinese, Bogg, with the characteristic zeal he has always dedicated to the cause of a suffering humanity, has lately undertaken much research work amongst the archives of the University Chinese Library. He is happy to be now able to announce that Chinese calligraphy and composition, being singularly free from those faults, are above reproach, and on the score of a virginal purity insisted upon by the most conservative of scholars, may safely be handled with other than a pair of tongs.

He finds that the real danger is not in the language itself, but one threatened to its purity by a foreign element that is fairly ruining its correct intonation. Interviewed as to the exact nature of this danger, that eminent Chinese scholar, Prof. Pooh Bah, has told Bogg that his countrymen have been made painfully aware of it under the name of Ockseford.

Encouraged by the success he has secured, and anxious to be classed as an authority on Chinese literature, Bogg to-day has progressed beyond the man man and fa fa stage, to give his first Chinese lesson along the following lines:

How the heck are you?—Nee kee ho lo na?
This thing is my wife.—Nee koh yeh hei ngoh koh lo poh.

Excuse me, you are stepping on my wife.—Wai, nee tsei ngoh koh lo poh.

Oh, how I hate my wife!—Haiyah, ngoh ho tung ngoh koh lo poh!

You may therefore step on her again.—Nee koh yeh tsei kuh koh too tak.

You may also step on my mother-in-law.—Nee koh yeh tsei mai ngoh koh ngoh mo.

My mother-in-law has done me wrong.—Ngoh koh ngoh mo 'm tui tuck ngoh eh.

Boy, bring a whisky-and-soda.—Boy, yew wai-see-see soda.

Bottoms up!—Yam sing!

Hi!—cup—Hi!—cup.

Have another!—Taoi yam koh.

I am seeing two of y—o—o—u.

Ngoh keen yew seeing koh nee.

Go to Hallifax!—Nee hui aee!

Come up and see me sometime.

Nee koh yeh seeing net keen ngo.

In addition to the above essentials, Bogg has a choice stock of Chinese oaths. These, of course, cannot be printed in this column, but he is willing to whisper them into your ear, the rates being ten cents per oath, with an additional charge of five cents for each repetition.

Vignette

Three girls share the same seat on the ferry. None of them is attractive, though all are showily dressed. All three appear to be bored, disatisfied, not much interested in anything.

No. 1 is plump, sharp-featured, wears an astonishing array of colours. A blue hat, a mulberry suit, multi-coloured scarf. She has recently been to Paris, I gather, and has a lot to say about clothes.

No. 2, in a grey squirrel coat, has had out her gold compact most of the way over. She has twice retouched her lips and cheeks; taken off her bored, and combed her nicely-permed hair. Even now, she seems displeased with the result.

No. 3 is a slim girl in black. She has done a little knitting and has talked about Janet Gaynor. Her conversation is so stupid that I should greatly like to shake her.

It has taken nature some millions of years to produce this little lot.

KOWLOON WHARF DREDGING COMPANY HAS TO PAY HALF ANNUAL MEETING

A decrease of 65,000 tons of cargo landed, with 76 more vessels discharging at the wharves, and a decrease in profits of nearly $30,000, was reported at the annual general meeting of the Hongkong and Kowloon Wharf and Godown Company, Limited, held in Messrs. Jardine, Matheson's Boardroom this morning.

The Hon. Mr. J. J. Paterson, who presided, in the course of his speech, referred to the various schemes which the Company had in hand for the improvement of the existing wharves, and the building of eight shops on the Salisbury Road end of the Kowloon property which, he said, should be completed in June. He also referred to the question of dredging costs.

Present at the meeting were the Hon. Mr. J. J. Paterson (Chairman), Hon. Mr. C. G. S. Mackie, Messrs. J. H. Jensen, S. H. Dodwell, Felix A. Joseph, T. B. Wilson, Directors; Mr. F. H. Crapnell, Secretary; Mr. R. A. Wadsworth, of Messrs. D. Acorns, solicitors for the Company; and Messrs. G. W. Heron, A. N. Mackenzie, G. Castle, D. Mackenzie, J. M. Alves, J. D. Danby, Kwok Hin-wang, G. B. S. Thomson and N. V. A. Croucher.

DECREASE IN PROFITS

Moving the adoption of the report and accounts, the chairman said:—Gentlemen,—Before I deal with the ordinary business of the meeting, I must, with much regret, make reference to the death of Mr. J. P. Warren who attended our last meeting and had been a member of the Board since 1929.

With your permission I will adopt the usual custom and take the report and accounts with the Auditors' Report which have been in your hands for some time, as read. From the accounts presented you will learn that there was a decrease of nearly $30,000 in our profits last year, but in view of the very adverse conditions of trade, particularly shipping, the result is better than expected. Compared with 1933, there was a decrease of 65,000 tons of cargo landed whilst 76 more vessels discharged at the wharves. This is a similar position to that which I referred to at the last meeting when comparing the tonnage landed in 1933 to that of 1932. It illustrates the depressed state shipping is passing through and the effort shipowners are making to keep up connections.

Undoubtedly it is the cheapness of the port that encourages shipping companies to make Hongkong a port of call in spite of so little cargo offering.

During last year our No. 2 Wharf was lengthened from 675 feet to 760 feet; and this year we are extending No. 1 Wharf from 667 feet to 760 feet. This wharf will also be widened from the present width of 51 feet to 81 feet and on the wharf will be erected a shelter for convenience of passengers and baggage.

DREDGING COST

Another construction scheme we have on hand is the building of eight shops on the Salisbury Road end of the Kowloon property. These should be completed early in June. I may mention that we already have tenants waiting to go into the buildings when ready for occupation.

Last year I referred to dredging which it was hoped would be undertaken in the vicinity of the wharves. This work is being done and there is now sufficient water around the new wharf, which is 800 feet in length, to berth vessels drawing up to 32 feet.

When the question of dredging was taken up with Government and this Company agreed to bear the cost of dredging between the wharves and an area 100 feet from the sea ends, it was understood that the approaches would be dredged at Government expense. It transpired later, however, that such was not the case and the Company is now called upon to pay a portion of the cost of clearing the harbour bed to permit vessels to approach the wharves. We pointed out that modern shipping tendency is for larger ships and that the maintenance of the Harbour generally should not be laid to the charge of the Company, but although Government took a sympathetic view of the situation, we were compelled to agree to pay half the cost of the necessary work.

In the accounts the only item calling for special comment is the $66,913.00 expended under the new account. This was the cost of reconditioning No. 2 Wharf which was done during alterations and extension.

I now beg to propose that the report and accounts as presented

CAPITAL INCREASE APPROVED

Addressing an extraordinary general meeting which followed, the Chairman said:—Gentlemen,—This meeting has been called for the purpose of obtaining your consent to an increase in Capital, outlined in the notice just read by the Secretary. This step has become necessary in view of the fact that during the past ten years we have expended the sum of $4,810,376.00 on land, buildings, wharves, launches and lighters, and now we have to find a considerable amount for dredging. The first cost of our property and plant was in the neighbourhood of ten million dollars, and I know that the replacing value to-day would be vastly higher. I think you will agree with your Directors that the capital of $4,000,000.00 is not in proportion to the value of our assets. Our proposal is to issue new capital at $25.00 per share, to the extent of $750,000.00, making this issue on 1st July next.

I beg to propose the following Regulations:

1. That the authorised capital of the Company (which is now $4,000,000.00 consisting of 80,000 shares of the nominal value of $50.00 each) the whole of which have been issued) be increased to $8,000,000.00 by the creation of 80,000 additional shares of the nominal value of $50.00 each ranking (subject as hereinafter mentioned) as from the date of allotment for dividend and all other respects pari passu with the shares comprising the Company's present capital.

2. That 10,000 of the said new shares be offered in the first instance (in the proportion of one new share for every complete number of eight old shares held by them respectively) to the members of the Company who on the Seventh day of March, 1935, are registered in the Company's share register as the holders of the said 80,000 existing shares at a premium of $25.00 per share and upon the footing that the full amount of each share taken up plus the said premium of $25.00 (making together $75.00 per share) shall be paid to the Company on acceptance of the offer, such shares so taken up not to participate in any dividend declared before the 1st day of July, 1935, but to participate in any dividend declared thereafter pro rata with the existing capital. And that the said offer be made by Notice specifying the number of shares to which the member is entitled, and limiting the time within which the offer is not accepted by the member on behalf of himself or his nominee will be deemed to be declined and that the Directors of the Company shall be at liberty to fix such time. And further that any of the said 10,000 shares which are not taken up by the Company's shareholders in manner aforesaid be disposed of in such manner as the Directors of the Company shall see fit at such time or times and upon such terms as the Company's Board of Directors shall in their absolute discretion think fit.

3. That no shareholder shall be entitled to any offer of a fraction of

PRIVY COUNCIL DECISION N.Y.K. Succeeds In Appeal COLLISION SEQUEL

The long litigation attendant upon the collision in the harbour of N.Y.K. steamship Toyooka Maru and the China Navigation Steamship Kiangau on March 22, 1931, reached its last stage to-day, when the result of the Privy Council Appeal having been known for some time, the Nippon Yusen Kaisha successfully applied for the return of deposit money and for costs.

Mr. H. G. Sheldon, K.C., instructed by Mr. Davidson, of Hastings & Co., appeared for the appellants, the N.Y.K., and Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K.C., instructed by Mr. M. M. Watson, of Johnson, Stokes & Master, represented the respondents.

Referring to the finding of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council Mr. Sheldon read: "The appeal is to be allowed; the judgment of the Chief Justice of February 19, 1932, and of the Full Court of August 15, 1932, to be reversed and the case to be remitted to the Supreme Court of Hongkong with a direction to find the Toyooka Maru and Kiangau both equally to blame for the collision, and to dispose of the consolidated actions including the costs in the Court below, in accordance with this finding. The appellants, having been in part successful before their Lordships, will have half the costs of the appeal."

REPAYMENT DETAILS

Mr. Sheldon said the present motion before the Court was to apply for an order that the China Navigation Co. repay the appellants sums of $41,037.64 paid for damages and interest; and $14,402.23 paid for costs and interest; together with interest at eight per cent. per annum from January 12, 1933, until payment; and also that respondents pay the costs of the present motion.

Enlarging on the motion, Counsel said the $41,037.64 was the actual amount paid over by N.Y.K. for the assessed damages. He did not think it would be disputed that they were entitled to interest on the damages they had paid. The important matter was that of costs, in which his Lordship could exercise his discretion. Appellants were not asking for costs in the original action, but they were asking for the costs of the Full Court and half the costs of the appeal to the Privy Council.

Mr. Jenkin said his clients were agreeable to pay half, but he felt that the expenses of the present motion had been involved unnecessarily, as notice need not have been served, and he asked for the costs of the motion.

Mr. Sheldon replied that the only manner in which he could bring his requirements before the Court was by serving notice.

His Lordship granted orders in the terms of the motion of the appellants, and ordered the China Navigation Co. to pay the costs of the day's hearing.

CLOUDY WEATHER

The anticyclone has decreased in intensity and moved eastward. It is now centred over the Eastern Sea. A moderate anticyclone has formed over the Upper Yangtze Valley. Local forecast:—N. E. winds, moderate, cloudy.

An additional share in respect of any old shares held by such shareholder.

4. That the remaining 70,000 new shares be issued at such time or times and upon such terms as the Company's Board of Directors in their absolute discretion shall think fit.

After this proposal has been seconded, I will endeavour, to the best of my ability, to answer any question shareholders may wish to ask.

The Hon. Mr. C. G. S. Mackie seconded, and the motion was unanimously adopted.

AMERICA'S DEBT AND DOLLARS NO DEVALUATION PLANNED?

MISLEADING REPORTS

Washington, March 6. After a conference with the Press here to-day, wherein President Roosevelt said that he feels that the dollar and the country's debt structure are still out of line, an attaché of the White House declared that any inferences that the President contemplated further devaluation were absolutely untrue.

Also he declared that nothing that President Roosevelt had said could be construed as containing the slightest suggestion that there was any intention of further devaluation, which position must be made clear as a result of some quarters having misinterpreted President Roosevelt's remarks.

President Roosevelt had expressed the belief that the purchasing power of the dollar should be lifted further to ease the burden of debts, which, while having been reduced enormously, had not been reduced sufficiently, and because of this, the Debt column in the National Balance Sheet was still too high.

When asked whether the very fact that the dollar had not yet been adjusted to the debts alone meant further devaluation, the President laughed and shook his head in the negative.

His observation as the result of a question as to whether commodity prices had been stabilised, caused a drop in the dollar due to his indication to the Press that the dollar was not yet cheap enough in relation to the debt burden.

In Chicago, grain prices soared nearly two cents as a result of the President's statement, which was bullishly construed.—United Press.

ANOTHER VIEW

Washington, March 6. Some quarters have interpreted President Roosevelt's remarks in respect of the dollar as a desire to promote increases in domestic prices without interfering with the present dollar.

The President, however, gave no indication of how much further the process should go.—United Press.

DEVALUATION POSSIBLE

New York, March 6. The belief was expressed on Wall Street to-day that dollar devaluation may be possible in the early summer. Observers point out that the pound declined rapidly after Great Britain had completed her re-financing, and thus it is speculated that the dollar may be devalued as soon as the March 15 re-financing is completed.—United Press.

U. S. OPINION

Washington, March 6. Diplomatic circles here to-day said they saw the probability of extensive consultations which would be necessary before the consummation of international assistance for China, following the Secretary of State's comment that the project is alive, but that there have been no tangible developments, thus strengthening the impression aroused by the indication from the White House that the consideration of the action is, thus far, general.

It is also believed that there is little hope of international action making it possible to circumvent the United States silver programme. State officials, asked when they would reply to the British overtures regarding China, said that the time was uncertain and that they would reply when required to do so.

President Roosevelt to-day said that as far as he had been informed, the discussion on aiding China had been confined to generalities, and that he personally had not paid any attention to the matter last week.—United Press.

H. K. FOOTBALL SENSATION: CLUB HEAVILY FINED

CLUB BEAT THE ARMY WIN TRIANGULAR HOCKEY

AND BECOME NEW CHAMPIONS

(By R. H. B.)

The Club played dashing hockey at King's Park yesterday afternoon to defeat the Army by one goal to nil and win the Triangular Tournament title for this season. In 1934 the Club were the wooden-spoonists but this year the reverse is the order, the Navy, last year's winners, occupying last place in the tourney.

The return of Geoffrey Divett gave some incentive to the Club's forward line, which, it will be recalled was crippled owing to Divett's absence in their last encounter with the military side. Divett worked very hard and was often seen in action in defence. The Club recovered for the most part, to the four-half backs game, J. L. Tetley, who played well at inside-left, dropping back to give valuable assistance to the defence, especially in the closing stages of the game when the Army opened their shoulders.

POTTER SHINES

J. E. Potter played an outstanding game at right-half for the Club. He had to mark Kartar Singh and Lal Singh and made a splendid job of it. Potter was injured in the second half and had to leave the field for a few minutes.

Jack-Rodger, the Club skipper who is proceeding on leave next week, played a very safe game at left back. His first time hitting was a feature, and by this he saved the Club from many difficult situations.

C. L. Gregory between the sticks brought off one or two wonderful saves and generally played a safe game. On one occasion he cleared magnificently on the circle line when Kartar Singh was in possession.

The Army forward line was ragged. Combination was sorely lacking. One of the main reasons for their failure was the fact that Kartar Singh was too individualistic, being robbed time and again by Potter. An earlier pass to Lal Singh or to Senior on numerous occasions might have meant goals.

CLUB WINGERS PLAY WELL

Oliver Garthwaite put in a lot of useful work in attack. May, on the right wing, was weak with his centre, and he found in Sommer a difficult defender to pass.

The Army intermediate line, Williams, Dulla Singh and Alaf Din had all their work cut out in holding the speedy Club forwards. Owen Hughes, on the right wing, and Norman Mackay, on the left flank, were conspicuous for their splendid bursts of speed.

Metcalfe was not very safe, while Khan Bahadur was the better of the backs. Hollingsworth was generally safe.

Willy Reed, the Club pivot, played a very fine game being a constant menace to Senior who did not seem to be able to do a thing right.

Arthur Lay, who scored the Club's deciding goal early in the game, bundled many efforts, subsequently. He tried too much petty stick work instead of getting rid of the ball quicker.

Joe Davis Makes Record Break

RUN OF OVER 2,000

London, Feb. 14.

Joe Davis, the United Kingdom champion, set up a world's billiards record under the baulk line rule at Thurston's yesterday, when, in his Gold Cup Handicap heat against Tom Reece he completed a break of 2,002.

The Chesterfield player had the table when play was resumed with an overnight unfinished 383. Quickly settling down, he reached four figures in 33 minutes, and completed his brilliant effort in one hour 52 minutes.

Previous best break under the baulk line rule was Clark McCann's 1,943 against Walter Lindrum in Brisbane last season.

DAVIS' "HAT-TRICK"

For the session Davis scored 1,775 and averaged 222, his last three innings realising 44, 31, and 50 (unfinished).

Reece, who had eight innings for the session, scored 102, including a break of 71. Interval scores: Davis (in play), 5,032; Reece, 672. Davis increased his lead to over 6,000 at night, scoring 1,260 to Reece's 618. Best breaks were 795 (full), 129, and 235 to the leader, and 59, 129, and 70 (unfinished) to Reece. Closing scores: Davis, 6,202; Reece (in play), 1,230.

STARTLING DEFEAT OF 'SPURS

GUNNERS RUN RAMPANT

EVERTON HELD

London, Mar. 6.

The Arsenal gained an astonishing league victory at White Hart Lane to-day when they defeated Tottenham by six clear goals and thereby take a lead of two points over the rest of first division teams.

This smashing success on foreign soil makes Arsenal firm favourites for the League Championship, and demonstrates that now they are free of Cup worries, they are more formidable than ever.

On the other hand the defeat is serious to the Spurs who are languishing next to the bottom in the league table, and are in dire danger of relegation.

Another sensation was provided by Hull City, who journeyed to Bolton to meet the second division favourites and English Cup semi-finalists and won by the odd goal in three. This is Bolton's eighth defeat of the season and it has considerably enhanced Brentford's championship prospects.

Chelsea picked up a welcome point at Stamford Bridge by sharing four goals with Birmingham, who are also lowly placed, while Leeds accomplished an excellent performance in holding Everton to a draw on the Toffe-Towners' ground. Eight goals were netted in this match.

Huddersfield easily accounted for West Bromwich, who had to travel, while Portsmouth did creditably to visit Preston and hold the North Enders to a draw.

In the third division Aldershot were unexpectedly prevented from beating Millwall, the game being scoreless, while in the northern section, Hartlepool found their own ground sufficient advantage to beat Rotherham.

GUY CHENG TO PLAY HERE

EXHIBITION AT THE C.R.C.

As announced yesterday, Guy Cheng, one of China's nominated Davis Cup players for 1935 is in Hongkong, and the Chinese Recreation Club are arranging for him to appear in an exhibition match at the C.R.C. on Sunday afternoon next, starting at 3 o'clock.

Tsui Wai-pui, the Colony champion will be Cheng's opponent, and they will play a best of five sets match. The match should be well worth seeing.

A small entrance fee will be charged to help defray the expenses of the C.R.C. "At Home" to be held on Saturday, March 23. At this function, an exhibition mixed doubles match will be played between L. Goldman and Miss R. Hancock, the Colony champions and Tsui Wai-pui and Mrs. J. F. Kayll.

RUMJAHNS TAKE THINGS EASY: TSUI WAI-PUY IMPRESSES

PORTUGUESE WIN HAPPY-GO-LUCKY MATCH AGAINST CHINESE

(By "Veritas")

With the Rumjahn cousins playing Garden Party tennis, Tsui Wai-pui practising and getting his wide repertoire of strokes into working order, and the Lo brothers struggling hard against unexpected opposition, spectators at the Hongkong Cricket Club yesterday were provided with variety if nothing else when the 1935 Open Tennis Championships were continued.

Striking a mean average, it cannot be said the standard of play on the six occupied courts was particularly high. Yet of interest there was plenty.

The Rumjahns played strictly in accordance with the demands of their match against Tollington and Ravenhill, the Army's only representatives in the doubles. When on a few occasions in the first set the trend of the game called for a little extra effort, they supplied it, and thereby won quite comfortably 6-4, 6-1.

STILL IN CHAMPIONS' CLASS

Both cousins produced sufficient evidence to satisfy that they are still well in the champions' class. Sidiar has not yet overcome his penchant for double faults, but he was steady in every other department.

H. D. Rumjahn was 'academic', volleyed as usual very crisply and pulling out an occasional "Exclusive" shot.

Tollington and Ravenhill were "all at sea" in their team work, and three times in the course of match gave away points by over-calling each other. Tollington brought off the most spectacular shot, and by the same token was the more erratic player. He was happier in his ground strokes than at the net, whereas Ravenhill exhibited several deft touches in volleying. Both, however, were inconsistent and because of this made things very much easier for the champions.

TSUI SHOWS HIS WARES
Tsui Wai-pui is going to be very difficult to beat this year. He played high-class tennis against A. E. P. Guest to beat the K.C.C. exponent in straight sets.

Guest tried hard to extend the rallies in the hope of forcing Tsui into blunders, but the champion was remarkably reliable and expeditious so many different shots, varying pace, direction and length in rapid exchange that he was generally able to finish a rally at the point he desired.

He pummelled Guest's backhand until it broke down under the strain. At the net Tsui was inflexible and tucked away Guest's best passing shots for outright aces. Altogether a delightful display of confidence and skill.

A. V. Remedios earned most of the honours when playing with A. V. Gosano against P. K. Liang and H. N. Lee.

These four young players abandoned any subtleties and went in for honest, to-goodness hitting, both pairs raiding the net simultaneously, so that spectators were treated to lively bouts of volleying. It was here that Remedios shone after a tentative start, while Gosano steadied down considerably in the latter stages of the match and gave his companion splendid support.

The Portuguese couple were the steadier pair at close quarters and because of this won the match. Both Liang and Lee, although in turn executing admirable shots, were far too inconsistent to win a majority of points for them.

It was bright, virile tennis, which showed that at least the players were well endowed with strong wrists.

UNEXPECTED OPPOSITION

M. K. and M. W. Lo received unexpected opposition from J. G. Haigh and G. S. Gamble, and were hard put to win 25 games. The Lo brothers appeared to be somewhat out of practice, M. W. in particular committing unusual blunders at the net.

The winners' vast experience eventually pulled the game out of the fire for them.

The losers although well below the brothers in the matter of pure tennis called upon hidden reserves of stamina to force the first set to 9-7 and the second to 7-5. Both players were reasonably good off the ground, but were deficient in volleying and overhead.

Umpire Leo Wal-long had to decide on a question of tennis law during the match between Beach Thomas and Petch and Tennie Kwok and Luk Ding-cheong.

In his anxiety to make certain of a point, Kwok volleyed a ball before it had passed over the net, and Lee rightly gave the point against the Chinese pair, bringing section F of Rule 17 into effect. This states that a player loses a point if he volleys the ball before it has passed the net.

The score was deuce when this occurred and the Europeans went on to snatch a service game from Luk Ding-cheong to lead 3-1 in the first set. Thereafter the Chinese asserted themselves and won five games in a row to walk away with the set.

The play generally was mediocre. Petch and Beach Thomas were too unreliable to force the Chinese into anything but a very ordinary defensive type of game. Mistakes which should never have been committed lost them innumerable points. On the other hand the Chinese were seldom in difficulties at the net and were fully capable of making winning shots.

STRONG ACTION AGAINST ATHLETIC

FOR SCRATCHING LEAGUE GAME

EXAMPLE MADE

(By "Veritas")

The Hongkong Football Association's determination to make an example of clubs who scratch league matches in order to allow their players to participate in friendly games is illustrated this week by the action taken by the F. A. against Chinese Athletic, who last Saturday postponed their league engagement with South China "B".

At a special meeting of the Committee held this week the Athletic were fined $20 and the fixture ordered to be re-arranged by the League Management Committee.

This is the heaviest fine ever imposed on a club for scratching a match.

MUST PAY BY MARCH 12

The Athletic have been given until March 12 to pay the fine, and in the event of their failing to do so, they will not be allowed to participate further in local football this season.

No official notification was given the Football Association of the club's intention to postpone the game. By special permission of the Area Sports Board, the Soekunpoo ground had been lent to two Chinese teams for the first time in history, and hundreds of spectators turned up for the match.

The Athletic intimated to South China the impossibility of being able to play the game on Friday, less than 24 hours before the scheduled date.

The Athletic's reason for postponing the game was that the club found itself unable to raise a team against South China owing to the fact that the majority of their players who are in Canton were due to play against the Club de Recreo in a series of week-end friendly games.

The postponed fixture was said to have been mutually re-arranged by the clubs for yesterday, but this was rescinded—by order of the Committee.

JAMAICA ON TOP

Slight Advantage Over M.C.C.

Kingston, Mar. 6.
Jamaica enjoyed a slight advantage at the close of to-day's play against the M.C.C.

The home team carried their overnight score to 305 before the whole side was dismissed. Moodie, who was 77 not out was unlucky to lose his wicket when six short of the century. Farnes was the most successful bowler, taking 4 for 68.

The M.C.C. finished the day 280 for 9, being 10 runs behind with one wicket in hand. Hendren scored 118 before dismissal and Holmes contributed 72.—Reuter.

PETERSEN TO VISIT U.S.A.On A Quest For Knowledge*TO BE TAUGHT IN-FIGHTING

London, Feb. 14. Jack Petersen is going to America—not in search of world honours, but on a quest for knowledge.

Neusel revealed "wide open spaces" in Petersen's defence, and proved that American methods of in-fighting were more effective than the Welshman's straight left and right cross.

Petersen senior now realises that his son has much to learn if he intends to rise in his profession. Jack is young enough to climb, provided he gets the right footholds.

Hence the decision to make a trip to America. The British champion will be absent from the ring for some time, although his injured left eye is healing rapidly, and much may be learned during his brief sojourn in the States.

Pin Petersen plans to take Jack across the Atlantic in a week or two, and to spend a month at least in one of the well-known camps in America.

It is probable that Jack will make use of Madame Boy's gymnasium, outside New York, where Barney Ross, light-weight champion of the world, and other top-notchers train.

The British champion is to have the assistance of several in-fighting experts, and he will be under the supervision of an American trainer.

In the meantime, Neusel is still in training at Windsor.

He has not forgotten his strenuous battle against an increasing waistline, and he intends to keep superfluous flesh under control.

Paul Damski, Neusel's manager, is awaiting news from Madison Square Garden.

He has had an offer for Neusel to fight Carnera in New York on March 20, and this will be accepted if it carries a guarantee of a world title fight with Baer afterwards.

"The Garden have the idea of matching the winners of the Carnera-Neusel and Hannas-Schmeling fights in an eliminator before Baer comes into the question."

"I am not interested in that proposal," stated Damski.

GOLF CHAMPIONMRS. ROBERTSON WINS EVENT*NARROW VICTORY

The Royal Hongkong Golf Club's Ladies' Champion for 1935 is Mrs. K. E. Robertson. She beat Mrs. Laiffond last Saturday by two up and one to play, on the Old Course, Fanning.

Mrs. Robertson won the first three holes. She had a perfect four at the first, Mrs. Laiffond missing her drive. Mrs. Laiffond missed her drive at the second, and Mrs. Robertson holed out in six after missing a short putt for a five. A perfect three at the third made her three up. Mrs. Laiffond won the fourth, where both had good drives, and the fifth was halved in five. Mrs. Robertson won the sixth, and was three up again. A feature of this hole was the beautiful iron shot which both ladies played.

Mrs. Laiffond won the "Bog" after being short with her tee shot, while Mrs. Robertson was bunkered. The eighth was halved; Mrs. Laiffond had a poor drive, but recovered with a fine approach, while her opponent missed hers. Mrs. Laiffond won the ninth, and was one down at the turn. Mrs. Robertson lost the tenth and eleventh, and Mrs. Laiffond was up for the only time in the match.

Mrs. Laiffond had a five at the tenth, after a poor drive, she recovered well with a good iron and a good approach.

Mrs. Robertson played a very courageous game across the green at the eleventh which unluckily finished in one of the terraces, and her next shot was pulled over the side. The match was squared at the "Gem," where neither player was up. Mrs. Robertson taking four. Mrs. Robertson became one up again at the thirteenth. The next three holes were halved, the "Armchair" in five. Mrs. Robertson won the seventeenth and the match was over two and one. It was a keenly contested final, and the winner deserves hearty congratulations.

Captain's Cup

The Captain's Cup was won by Mrs. J. B. Ross, who beat Mrs. Whyte-Smith in the final two and one.

Railway Cup

In the final of the Railway Cup competition, Mrs. Williamson beat Mrs. Lissaman by three and two.

Mrs. D. J. Valentine won the Taggart Cup, beating Mrs. Hillier by two up in the final.

SILKEN SPINDLES

by Laura Lu Brookman

The mother is a widow. She promises to give him an answer in a few days. The mother is a widow. She promises to give him an answer in a few days. The mother is a widow. She promises to give him an answer in a few days.

CHAPTER IX

The morning sunlight slanted through the tall, wide windows and fell in a bright path across the carpeted floor. It fell on the heavy, polished desk, striking the silver, leather-bound calendar and the stack of opened letters addressed to Mr. Robert Thatcher, general manager of the mill.

Thatcher sat at the desk, very straight, the palms of his hands pressed together. When he spoke the words came crisply.

"My dear Brian," he was saying, "you know we're all glad to see you back. It's a fine thing—a son stepping into his father's shoes."

Brian Westmore said quickly, "I'm afraid it will be a long time before I can do the whole thing in new to me; I've got so much to learn. But I'm anxious to get started—more anxious than I've ever been about anything before."

Thatcher nodded. "That's the spirit," he approved. "If most young men felt that way, if they would take an interest in business instead of frittering their time away on silly sports and such nonsense, this country would be a great deal better off. Yes, indeed! A great deal better off."

Brian leaned forward. "My mother told me," he said, "how wonderfully you've managed everything—keeping employees on and paying them the same wages in spite of the fact that times are so bad. I want to know how you did it."

The older man raised a hand, deprecatingly, "Just helping my hand on the rudder, Brian. These last eight months have been trying ones. In the industry at large, I mean. Here in our mill we've had our little troubles, but nothing more than that. Nothing to be anxious about."

"I read a lot about the new experiments they're trying out in this country. About the way they're tackling things at Washington, trying to organize the country on a new economic basis, giving the workers a chance to stand on their own feet."

Thatcher's lips tightened. His voice neither rose nor lowered, but it took on a hardness as he interrupted: "Yes, of course. It's all very interesting. Extraordinary, in fact. I'm a conservative man, Brian. At least some people would call me so. But I've been trained in a hard school. Some of these new ventures—well, frankly I must confess I'm sceptical about them. Not opposed, you understand, but sceptical. Until someone can show me a better way I prefer to go along as we have been here, meeting problems as they come along, working them out. I think, with a sigh of pride, 'that results under my management have been fairly satisfactory.'"

"Ah!" Thatcher smiled. "Profits," he went on in the clear, hard tone, "have been gratifying. And we have no labour troubles. Our workers are like a peaceful, contented family. The spirit of the men and women in the mill is one of friendly co-operation. You've seen the mill village, Brian?"

"Yes—that is, I've driven through it."

"Then you know how comfortably our workers live. In model homes equipped with every convenience. They have the very best we can give them, at the lowest price. Yes, I'm happy to say that in these times of unrest and dissatisfaction elsewhere our employees are completely satisfied."

The young man said eagerly, "But that's because you're paying them honest wages for their work. What is the wage scale, Mr. Thatcher?"

"Well," the general manager moved restlessly. "Of course it varies. There are our highly skilled workers and those who have been with us for years; then there are those who are beginners. The government has set a minimum scale for the textile industry, as you perhaps know. I can say that all our employees are receiving an amount well above the minimum."

"You've cut working hours, yet you're keeping up salaries?"

"Why—why, yes," Brian smiled. "Mother told me that, but I was afraid to believe it. I thought she might have gotten things mixed up. Mother hasn't much head for business. That's why she is so grateful to you for all you've done. And I'm grateful, too, Mr. Thatcher."

"Only too glad to be of service, my boy. Only too glad!"

"I should have been here myself."

Thatcher's narrow face seemed to lengthen. "Your father's death," he said pompously, "was unexpected. It was, of course, very sad, but you should be so far away from home. Your father was a splendid employer."

Brian sat at the new desk, his arms folded.

And a friend. I'm sure he'd be very happy if he could see you to-day and know that you're going on with the business he established. I'm sure he'd be proud of you, Brian."

The general manager sat back and rubbed his hands together. "And now about getting a place for you to work," he said. "I've had the office next door put into shape. It's quite pleasant, I think, but if there's anything at all you'd like changed, just say so. Shall we have a look at it?"

He was on his feet. Brian arose also. "I wasn't expecting an office," he said, hesitatingly. "Not now. Tell me what I'd thought, Mr. Thatcher. I'd like to begin in the mill, doing whatever you put new workers to doing. I'd like to work in all the different departments and find out how the different jobs are done."

Thatcher's voice cut in sharply. "But this is the place to learn the business, Brian. I'll call in some of our experts this afternoon and they'll explain the processes to you. In a short time—No, I think it would be a great mistake for you to go into the mill. I—I'd be very much opposed to it."

"But why?"

Thatcher told him. "You don't know how they feel about the Westmore name, about your father. You want their respect, don't you? Their confidence? The work must go on, mustn't it? To be one of them. You couldn't anyhow, you know."

"Of course," Brian said slowly, "if you're sure that's the way it is."

"Certainly I'm sure," Thatcher smiled. "I've been in this mill 15 years, my boy. I ought to know something about it. I'll put a hand on Brian's shoulder. 'We'll work together,' he said, 'You and I. You're going to be a great help to me.'"

"Of course you can! Now then—shall we take a look at your office?"

Ten minutes later Robert Thatcher sat at his desk. The door leading into the next office was closed; there was no one else in the room. The general manager reached for the telephone, but before he raised it his lips formed three words.

"Paying young pup!" he said. Then he picked up the telephone, gave some instructions and waited. Presently there was a knock at the door.

"Come in," Thatcher called. A heavily-built, red-faced man entered. "You wanted to see me, Mr. Thatcher?"

"Yes, Parsons."

The man crossed the room, halted before the general manager's desk. "The young man is here," Thatcher said, with a nod toward the door on the right. "We've been having a talk. I want you to remember, Parsons, what I told you last week. If he wants to see reports, figures, anything—he's not to see them. He'll have only the statements I turn over to him. Understand? If he comes to you with questions, put him off, and then let me know. I'll tell you what to do. You won't forget?"

"No, Mr. Thatcher."

"Don't under any circumstances, answer questions about the payroll or about the number who are working in the mill. Oh, and another thing—I want to know who he talks to when he's away from this office. If he seems to be getting friendly with any of the men I'd like to hear about it."

The red-faced man nodded. "Yes, Mr. Thatcher," he said unctuously. "That's all."

Thatcher picked up a letter and read it through. He did not look up as the door closed on the red-faced man.

The telephone rang several times during the next half hour and Thatcher answered. Once he pressed a bell and his secretary—a slim young woman with yellow cheeks—entered, carrying some papers which she placed before him, then withdrew.

Brian sat at the new desk, his arms folded.

Brian followed. They passed down the hallway and turned a corner. Thatcher, glancing over his shoulder, said something but Brian did not hear the words. He was looking at a girl who was coming toward him—a girl in a blue apron-dress, a pretty girl with gray eyes beneath wide, dark brows. Brian recognized her instantly. She was the girl he had talked to at the river, the girl who had gone through the ice.

SCHOOL CURRICULUM PROPOSAL

London, Mar. 6.
An Inter-Departmental Committee is being set up to devise road safety instruction for children as part of the curriculum in schools of England and Wales.

The members will include representatives of the Board of Education, the Transport Ministry, the Home Office, local authorities and school teachers, and evidence will be taken from motor- and other organisations.

At the request of local education authorities, a scheme has been worked out for selected officers of police traffic patrols to give brief lectures to illustrate road danger in elementary schools of the Metropolitan Police district, and the use of the cinema in schools for the same purpose will also be considered.

BRITAIN'S PROPOSAL TO LEAGUE

Geneva, Mar. 4.
Closing its session here yesterday, the International Union for the League of Nations adopted the proposal submitted by the British delegation to grant a semi-permanent seat in the League Council to China.

The proposal notably held that it was necessary to grant more adequate representation to Asiatic powers in the League Council.

At the same time, the seriousness of political problems in the Far East, the vastness of China's territory, and the fact that China has a very large population are stressed.—Havas.
